SEEK WOMEN IN ELWELL MURDER

LOVE CLEW MAY BARE SCANDAL

Several Women Known to Have Keys to Rooms of Slain Society Favorite

New York, June 12.—A scandal which may rock New York and Newport society to its foundations was revealed as a possibility by the police today as a result of their investigation into the mysterious murder of Joseph Bowne Elwell, society man, race horse owner and bridge whist authority.

A number of women are known to have possessed keys to the Elwell home at No. 244 West Seventieth street, where Elwell was found with a bullet hole through his head, seven hours after leaving a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewisohn.

The victim, who had been separated from his wife for several years, was also a bridge whist instructor for society women, a gay entertainer at Newport and Palm Beach, and had a wide acquaintance in sporting circles.

Possessed of a large income, a talented, affable and much sought after person, through Elwell's life ran a strongly defined woman motif which is believed to have eventually caused his death.

SOME WOMAN KNOWS.

The police admit that at present the murder is one of the most enigmatic they have been called on to unravel, but are confident that among the many women friends of Elwell one woman knows truth will eventually come out.

The only clue to be found when the police took charge of the case was an exploded 45-calibre shell on the floor a few feet from the chair in which the pajama-clad and unconscious form of Elwell was huddled.

The pistol could not be found and the victim died at Bellevue Hospital two hours later without regaining consciousness.

During the day three women, all described as being young and beautiful, were questioned by the police, who refused to make public their manner or any information which they may have disclosed.

WOMEN HAD KEYS.

Elwell's chauffeur, Edward B. Rhodes, declared that there were two or three women with whom his employer was intimate. He understood that these women had keys to the house, but did not know their names. Rhodes also volunteered the theory that the husband of one of these women, learning of her relations with the dead man, had secured her key, let himself into the house and obtained vengeance.

The police investigation, however, is extending far afield, as Elwell, in the dual capacity of race horse owner and bridge whist instructor, came into contact with many persons.

Efforts are being concentrated in an endeavor to ascertain where and how the murdered man spent the last few hours of his life, whether or not he was in the company of some woman.

It was learned that he left the Lewisohn party about 2 o'clock, or

Denies 'Xmas Present' Given Jack Geraghty

Providence, June 12.—Jack Geraghty was not handed a Christmas present by Julia French Geraghty and stories telling of a "substantial sum" paid to Geraghty by his former wife are "bunk," according to a man who was a guiding figure in the divorce proceedings at Newport.

Geraghty did not appear before the Newport court and the deposition resulting in a divorce were printed exclusively in the Boston American. What is termed "inside stuff" is required for the non-appearance of Geraghty. The man who claims to know the inside of the Geraghty-French divorce tangle said today:

"I read in newspapers that Jack Geraghty was handed a substantial sum by Julia French Geraghty, his former wife. I am in a position to know that there was no Christmas present made and know such stories are bunk."

POLICE 'THRILL' IN COMEDIES

Officers Lyle and Gould Battle Insane Man and Stop Runaway Horse

Patrolmen Frank Lyle and William Gould of Station 4 crowded five reels of movie thrills into one short hour.

At the South Station they battled with an insane man armed with an iron coat hanger, had an exciting time taking him to the Psychopathic Hospital, and on their return chased a runaway horse for several blocks.

The horse was attached to a team loaded with strawberries. On Tremont street it started to bolt just as the taxi containing the two officers was rounding a corner. The patrolmen, standing on the running board, in true cinema style, gave chase. They finally stopped the horse when Lyle leaped onto its neck.

The insane man was a former inmate of the Danvers and Taunton insane hospitals. Armed with the coat hanger, he threatened to kill anyone that came near him. He fought the officers before he was finally overpowered.

Lee was in his shirt sleeves and informed the police that his coat was being minded by a man who was sitting on the Common near the "pretty building." When Patrolman Lyle and Gould went there later they found an Italian holding the coat as described, and proudly exhibiting a half-dollar which had been giving him for caring for it.

MILL OFFICIAL DROPS DEAD IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, June 12.—William Alexander Lanigan, aged 37, of No. 229 Andover street, died suddenly in the office of the Davis Foundry Company of which he was treasurer. Death was due to neuralgia of the heart. Mr. Lanigan was also treasurer of the Emerson Machine Company and the Lawrence Machine Company. He was unmarried and is survived by his father, James P. Lanigan, a prominent foundryman, two brothers, Edward, of this City, and Charles L., of New York, and one sister, May Lanigan of this city.

ADMITS LOVE FOR VICTIM

Mrs. Kenyon Unable to Remember Firing Shot That Killed Retired Physician

Pawcatuck, Ct., June 12.—Mrs. Mabel Kenyon, forty-four, mother of four children, admits that she held the revolver which killed Dr. Herbert Tetlow, fifty, a retired physician, in his apartment here, according to Prosecuting Attorney Benjamin Hewitt.

Mrs. Kenyon, who accuses the slain man of a serious offence, declares the weapon exploded while she was passing it to Dr. Tetlow after he had persuaded her not to commit suicide. She further asserts that he asked for the gun to take his own life. The shooting, she said, occurred following a quarrel with the doctor.

She was removed from the local jail today, where she had been held without bail, and arraigned in the Stonington police court. Harry B. Agard, who was engaged by the woman's husband, Alvin Kenyon, a machinist, appeared for the defendant.

Three shots were fired but only one took effect, the bullet shattering Dr. Tetlow's arm and entering his side. The Coroner Franklin Brown Mrs.

FOOTPRINTS LEAD TO ARREST OF TWO MEN

Footprints left in the recently turned soil of the garden of Mendill Kateff at No. 27 Brookview street, Dorchester, led to the arrest of Barney Barnett, twenty-nine years old, and Alexander Wiiur, twenty-seven years old, both of Washington street, Roxbury. Mrs. Kateff heard a noise and called to neighbors. The two men escaped through the back yards of several houses. Half an hour later the police picked up Barnett and Wiiur. The sneakers worn by one of them and shoes worn by the other, the police say, fitted into the marks in the garden.

Court to Decide if Cat Will Bite a Person

Will a cat bite a person? That is the question which the Massachusetts Supreme Court will be asked to decide.

With their customary thoroughness, the learned justices may be expected to conduct an exhaustive research into the extent of feline viciousness, members of the local bar association said today.

Mrs. Fannie J. Goodwin of West Roxbury claims that while in the store of the E. B. Nelson Grocery Company a cat bit her when she put her hand out to ward off the attack on her dog. She then sued the Superior Court decided against her. She appealed to the Supreme Court.

WOMEN HURT IN CAR CRASH

Passengers Thrown to Floor When One Trolley Rams Another in Lynn

Mrs. Gertrude Hennessy, wife of Dr. Francis T. Hennessy, No. 655 Western avenue, Lynn, sustained injuries to the left ankle and shoulder, and Miss Lena Daudreau, No. 45 Abbott street, received numerous bruises, when two trolley cars collided in Lynn.

Thirty passengers were piled in a heap in the aisle by the collision and were showered with broken glass.

Failure of the brakes on the car bound for Boston is given as the cause of the accident.

The injured were removed to the nearby office of Dr. Charles Holtt and later taken to their homes.

NAVY BOAT CAPSIZES, 9 DEAD

Fifty Officers and Men Are Rescued In Disaster Off Delaware Coast

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, June 12.—Overturned in the fury of a sudden squall and terrific electrical storm, Eagle Boat 25, of the United States Navy, which capsized off the jetty between Delaware City and Newcastle, Del., took a toll of nine lives.

Fifty-eight officers and men were aboard and all of these were rescued except eight seamen, who are believed to have drowned.

Chaine Brandt, who was rescued from the hold of the overturned craft, died later as a result of inhaling gas fumes.

The survivors owe their escape to the appearance of two steamships and a number of fishing craft that put out from Newcastle during the height of the storm and saved a number of seamen who were fast drifting out to sea.

N.E. Democrats Fight Wilson League

New England Democrats will, by an overwhelming majority, lift their voices against the League of Nations when that measure comes up in the Democratic National Convention.

They will make no compromise with the cohorts of the administration who appeal for endorsement of the President's covenant in the interests of party harmony.

They will insist that the league either be radically changed or thrown overboard altogether as the best method of winning back public respect.

That is the New England situation in brief as disclosed by a quiet canvass by the Boston American.

LEAGUE ENEMIES GROW

That diagnosis was strengthened today by news from Rhode Island, in which the enemies of the league in any form have increased from four to seven in the State delegation of ten.

Rhode Island is expected to take a leading part in the battle against the covenant as a result of these recent developments.

Disgust with the Republicans for their alleged straddling of the issue is rife in Democratic circles. While political leaders are urging that the Democrats make no such mistake at San Francisco.

In every State, starting with Massachusetts and ending with Rhode Island, most of the delegates are "bitter end" opponents of the league.

There are a few exceptions to that rule, but the exceptions are not men of influence. They are mostly Federal office holders afraid that anything be done to upset the party apple-cart, or national committeemen who spend their days listening to the whisperings from Washington.

The New England situation may

The presentation took place at his Broadway office in New York.

BOSTON BROKER REARRESTED

George L. Ware, Recently Fined for Illegal Advertising, Is Charged With Larceny

George L. Ware of the George L. Ware Company, Congress street brokers, who was fined $100 in Municipal Court in Attorney-General Allen's crusade against brokers who advertised unregistered stock, was arrested charged with larceny of $250 from Donald H. Fuller of Winthrop, a customer.

He was arraigned before Judge Parmenter and held in $500 bonds for a hearing Tuesday.

Fuller charges that in January he bought 500 shares of St. Lawrence Mining Company stock at 50 cents a share and that although he has requested the certificates or the return of his money on several occasions, Ware has refused to deliver either.

CHILD BREAKS LEG IN RESCUING PET KITTEN

Lillian Mullaly, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullaly of No. 15 Elton street, Dorchester, received a possible fracture of the left leg when she attempted to rescue her pet kitten from under a wagon on Dorchester avenue. The child was struck under the vehicle when it started. Charles Kernan, driver, No. 40 Auckland street, Dorchester, heard her screams and pulled her from beneath the wheels. He carried the child to the office of Dr. Archibald B. Eaton of Savin Hill avenue. After treatment she was sent to City Hospital, still grasping her pet.

BORAH PREDICTS JOHNSON VICTORY

Chicago, June 12 (Bulletin)—The temperature in the Coliseum was 82 at 8 a. m.

By International News Service.

Chicago, June 12.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler has withdrawn from the presidential race, according to announcement today by William Barnes. The withdrawal of Butler releases the twenty votes which he received on the fourth ballot. It was reported that the bulk of the Butler vote would go to Lowden.

Chicago, June 12.—"Hiram W. Johnson will be the nominee by tonight!" John Francis Neylan, floor manager for the Californian, predicted this early today.

It was also declared by Senator Borah that a coup would be enacted today which would spell victory for Senator Johnson.

12 to 9 on Johnson if He Runs

That Senator Hiram W. Johnson has some staunch supporters in Boston is evidenced by the offer of Peter V. Fernandes to wager $120 to $90 that the Senator will be the next President, if he runs.

Fernandes is a Progressive and was a member of the reception committee to Senator Johnson on his recent visit to Worcester.

He sent a letter to Senator Johnson and also a copy to Senator Lodge, urging the Californian to bolt the Republican party if it does not nominate him.

BORAH THREATENS "MONEY PROBE" IF WOOD OR LOWDEN WINS

BUTLER'S WITHDRAWAL FREES NEW YORK DELEGATION

Blackstone Hotel by other Republican leaders in an attempt to break the convention deadlock, would also be thoroughly gone into by the Borah committee, Borah intimated.

Borah's announcement was made after he conferred with Senator Moses, chairman of the committee, at the Congress Hotel while the Blackstone conferences were going under way.

The committee would resume its investigation at Chicago on July 7, when the alleged use of Lowden money in the pre-convention Missouri campaign, testified to at Washington recently, would be probed further, it was stated.

Both the Republican and Democratic conventions would be kept in view by the committee, it was understood, until all campaign expenditures and contributions had "been checked up."

HARDING A POSSIBILITY.

A drive to substitute Harding for either Wood or Lowden in the convention reconvened at 10 o'clock this morning was discussed at the Blackstone conferences, it was learned.

It was also reported a majority of the Pennsylvania delegation was still urging Sproul as a compromise candidate, although willing to swing behind Harding as second choice.

When the convention met again today clouds of uncertainty hovered over the Coliseum and extended far up on Michigan avenue to the conference rooms of the party leaders.

A series of all-night conferences, some of which did not end until a red-hot dawn, broke over the week-end, failed to develop anything definite so far as could be learned early today. Every available proposition leading to the Wood, Lowden, Johnson, Sproul and Harding candidacies was broached by their supporters during these overnight conferences.

They resulted in a plethora of rumors and reports of agreements, out of which it appeared that Lowden and Wood were deadlocked in the lead, each still away more than 100 votes.

DEADLOCK STILL HOLDS.

General Wood with 314½ votes and Governor Lowden with 312½ votes failed to make any material gains over night, it is understood, and it was the generally expressed opinion of party leaders today that they would go to the next roll call to-day listing their situations relatively unchanged.

As a result of this weakness manifested by both the leaders, the attention turned today more and more to the dark-horse possibilities, with Senator Harding of Ohio, who quit the balloting with 67½ votes, and Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania, who had 79½ ballots when the adjournment came.

Both men are reported to have been approved by Boise Penrose, the Old Guard leader who lines with Philadelphia, and Wm. by private telephone wires. Keeps in as close touch with the situation as though he were beside the platform.

Whether either of these men can take away sufficient strength from Wood and Lowden, or from Johnson and his 145½ votes, remained to be seen in today's developments.

Senator Harding filed an eleventh-hour notice in Ohio last night of his candidacy for the United States Senate. This started reports that the Ohio Senator had viewed the situation as hopeless and withdrawn from the race.

It had been generally understood that Senator Harding's withdrawal from the presidential race was mandatory under Ohio law if he filed for a senatorship. This, however, was denied at Harding headquarters and by the Senator himself.

"The situation is unchanged. I have not withdrawn," he said.

JOHNSON HOLDS FAST.

Representatives of the Wood, Lowden, Harding and Sproul candidacies visited the headquarters of Johnson during the night seeking trades or an understanding. Each of them was met with blank refusal, the California stalwart insisting unequivocally that he would not trade, would not withdraw, and that he would go down in defeat, if necessary, with every delegate he could muster.

A move towards Knox by the seventy-six Pennsylvania delegates was talked of, although from twenty-five to thirty of them were said to be ready to fall in line for Wood when freed from their pledges to stick to Sproul.

Senator Borah declared he had no personal objection, to Sproul. It is also known Johnson and Knox are quite friendly. But Borah asserted that Johnson not only would be nominated but that he would be elected the next President. Borah reiterated that under no circumstances would he consent to Wood or Lowden. Borah's attitude, and the knowledge that Senator Kenyon was planning to get his committee into action again soon after the San Francisco convention ends, were said to have contributed to the willingness displayed at the Blackstone conferences to drop both Wood and Lowden.

Senator Sproul played an important role in these conferences. Colonel William Cooper Procter, millionaire soap manufacturer, who admitted having contributed more than $500,000 to the Wood campaign fund, was in close touch with them. Governor Lowden, through his campaign managers, was also said to have been kept informed as to what transpired.

HARDING HOPES RISE.

Among the Senators, besides Smoot, who drifted in and out of the conferences were Watson of Indiana, Brandegee of Connecticut, Wadsworth of New York, Freilinghuysen of New Jersey, Calder of New York, Curtis of Kansas and Harding.

It was freely muttered by delegates friendly to Harding, assembled in the Blackstone lobbies, to await the outcome of the conferences, that the Ohio Senator would be the outcome of the deadlock of the convention before many ballots were taken today.

The conferees did not reach an agreement on Harding, it was said, until by a process of elimination they had disposed of all other candidates except Wood and Lowden, neither of whom was considered seriously. It was the belief of the conferees, it was reported, that both Wood and Lowden would begin to weaken after the first few ballots today, although the campaign managers of each were said to have refused any "deal" to swing to any other candidate.

G. O. P. Reactionary, Bryan Believes

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Written Expressly for International News Service

Copyright, 1920, by W. J. Bryan.

W. J. BRYAN.

This convention is the most reactionary that I have had the privilege of attending, fact made manifest in many ways.

Chicago, June 12.—As this report of the convention must be given to the press before the convention meets, it is not possible to report its action on the presidential nomination and that nomination may be made before my words reach the reader. I can, therefore, set forth only the indications based upon the character of the convention, their value depending upon whether they are borne out by final results.

This convention seems to be very reactionary. I have been attending national conventions for forty-four years, beginning in 1876, if I may be permitted to turn for a moment to personal experience. At the age of sixteen I attended the convention in St. Louis, seventy miles from my birthplace. I knew no one and what was worse, no one knew me. A policeman took pity on me and put me in through a window.

The chairman of the resolutions committee was authorized to announce, well, I will not say that I was defeated, but I was a stand-patter of stand-patters. He had the overwhelming support of the reactionary delegates and that gives to the progressives was quite marked.

MR. BRYAN GUESSES.

Senator Smoot of Utah, one of the outstanding leaders of extreme conservatism, has his hand on the throttle. His delegation showed its knowledge of practical politics by dividing its vote between Wood, Lowden and Harding.

At this writing it seems unlikely (remember this is only a guess) that the leading candidate will be nominated. That has been practically disclosed by the investigating committee would seem to be far less dangerous to the White House. He is also handicapped by the fact that the convention failed to indorse the compulsory military training policy of which he had been the leading champion.

Governor Lowden would probably be the choice of the reactionary element if they dared to risk his nomination. But his financial connection with Big Business, added to the large sum that he admits to have invested in his campaign, makes his nomination highly improbable.

Senator Johnson's vote rose from 132¼ on the first ballot to 145 on the third and then fell to 139½ on the fourth. There seems to be no likelihood of his vote reaching a much higher figure.

CLING TO FAITH IN COOLIDGE

Boosters of Bay State Governor Believe He Still Has Chance

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Chicago, June 12.—It is quite likely that Governor Coolidge will lose seven or eight more Massachusetts delegates to General Wood on the first or second ballot today. Five only more teen were with him when the last ballot was taken yesterday. It is possible that when he goes to the ballot tonight there will be only an even dozen of the delegates from his home state that will stand up to be counted for him.

His staunch friends contend that that will be the lowest ebb of the tide in the Massachusetts delegation. They still assume to believe that when the Coolidge vote from Massachusetts reaches the low level of twenty-five it will begin to turn and the delegates will begin to return to the fold.

A great effort to stem the tide and to gain new strength was made at the New England get-together dinner at the University Club last night. There was about 150 present, mostly delegates. Every State in the Yankee belt was represented. Lieutenant-Governor Cox presided.

He introduced as the principal speaker of the occasion the Hon. W. Murray Crane of Dalton, former governor of and United States Senator from Massachusetts. Crane delivered a very conventional speech—that is, for Crane. He said he was glad to meet everybody present and hoped everybody would have a good time.

Brisbane's Story of the Balloting

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Chicago, June 12.—Rollcall and nominations are ended. Now comes the business that brought everybody here, the delegates will vote for the presidential candidates.

The vote starts off in the direction of Woods. You will read the full details of the balloting elsewhere if you like.

A loudy, cheer for the first big Lowden vote.

Idaho, Borah's State, gives Wood five votes, Borah himself two and Johnson one.

Illinois gives Johnson three votes. Wood and Hoover get his vote just one each from Maine.

Massachusetts gives Coolidge twenty-eight of her votes and to Wood the other seven.

When the clerk calls Missouri somebody answers "Not ready." A man in the gallery shouts "Counting out cash."

Missouri reports four and a half votes for Wood, eighteen for Lowden, three for Johnson, five for Harding, three and a half for Sproul, one for Sutherland.

Nevada gives a half vote to Hoover.

New Jersey gives eleven to Johnson; seventeen to Wood. New York gives Butler 45 and makes the record.

North Dakota, where farmers no their thinking even outside of party lines, goes for Johnson.

PENROSE NOT OUT.

There is genuine team work in Pennsylvania. Penrose may be sick, but as the Salvation Army says he is never down and out.

The State's 73 votes go to Sproul. You know that. In the early stations the first ballot is largely complimentary, kind words for favorite sons. The real business comes later the first or second ballots.

There is hissing and booing when Wisconsin gives one vote to Hoover, one to Wood and twenty-four to La Follette, but Wisconsin seems to know her own mind, which is to La Follette is the important thing. Porto Rico divides seven between Wood and Lowden. One vote for each and the first ballot is ended.

Now comes the result of the first ballot. Wood gets 314½; votes; Lowden, 211¼ votes; Johnson, 133½; Harding, 67½; Hoover, 7 votes.

The clerk forgets to mention Sproul, which makes Lodge indignant.

Sproul gets 79½ votes, which makes on this ballot, Wood first, Lowden second, Johnson third, Sproul fourth. They call another roll.

Johnson gains one vote in Connecticut and that is the first break for him.

He loses one vote in Florida, gains thirteen in Illinois. Watch for more in this State.

JOHNSON GAINS FOUR.

Johnson gains four votes in New York, which surprises the convention. Wisconsin on this roll call gives La Follette 24 votes, and again the delegates, who know that La Follette is in a hospital following a serious operation, hiss and groan. It is a good way to help build up an independent party in Wisconsin.

On the second ballot Johnson with 146 votes gains 12¾ votes. Wood gains 2 votes. Lowden gets 239½, gaining 44¾ votes.

Mr. Hoover, losing 1½ votes, has 3¼ votes left. He might have done better if his "enemy-money-money" had landed with the Democrats.

It is ten minutes past six and a motion is made to adjourn. There is a roar against it and the motion is lost.

The roll call starts again and Johnson gains a vote in Alabama. Lowden gains ten in New York. Wood gains four, Johnson gains one.

Mr. Butler, favorite son, is abandoned by all but 25. He may, with another disappointed one, say "We are each stuff as dreams are made of, and our little life is rounded with a sleep."

Senator Wadsworth corrects the New York vote. It should have been 25 for Butler instead of 15. But the quotation about presidential dreams stands.

The third ballot gives Wood 261, a gain of 13 1-2; Lowden 182½, a gain of 22½; Johnson, 146, a gain of 3.

Once more an adjournment is moved. California demands a roll call. The adjournment is defeated.

The fourth pulling for the presidency begins.

Wood, leader, still lacks 190 votes for the nomination.

They took eighty ballots once at a State convention in Illinois. They may have many ballots here if they continue balloting without a recess, to give gentlemen a chance to "talk business."

The fourth ballot, just finished, gives Wood 314½, a gain of 53½; Lowden 288, a gain of 64; Johnson, 146½, a loss of 7½, and Hoover 5 votes, a loss of one-half portion.

Senator Smoot of Utah moves an adjournment and we adjourn.

RETIRING COHASSET FIRE CHIEF GETS $100 PURSE

Chief Henry Brennock of the Cohasset Fire Department was tendered a reception by prominent business men and town officials on the retirement from service after thirty years on the force. He has been chief for the last eight years. A purse of $100 in gold was presented to him by the town of Cohasset. Assistant Chief Henry Bloss-som will succeed him.

HINT AT SCANDAL IN MURDER

Police Believe Society Woman Knows How 'Whist King' Met Death

the south side of Forty-second street, west of Seventh avenue. This fact was established by a statement issued by a member of the firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Parker & Fox, which read:

HAD GAY DINNER PARTY.

"Mr and Mrs. Walter Lewisohn gave a little family dinner party on the roof of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Mr. Elwell, who is an old friend, was invited. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Lewisohn, the latter's sister, Tosia Kraus, and a young man were present.

"Mr. and Mrs. Lewisohn have known Mr. Elwell for years. They know, of course, of his business affairs. The party was a jolly one. No one had anything to drink, but all were in high spirits, noticeably Mr. Elwell.

"The dinner lasted until rather late in the evening. Then the party motored to the 'Midnight Follies' and saw the performance. As near as Mr. Lewisohn and the others can recall, the party left the New Amsterdam roof between 1:30 and 2 o'clock this morning.

"On the sidewalk the Lewisohn group parted from Mr. Elwell. He bade all of them a pleasant goodbye, expressed his pleasure at the enjoyable evening he had spent and strolled west on Forty-second street toward Eighth avenue. Mr. Lewisohn and the others say Mr. Elwell was in most excellent spirits."

NO ONE SAW ELWELL.

From that time until 8.30 the police have been unable to find anyone who saw Elwell. At 7:45 two painters sitting on the doorsteps of a private dwelling adjoining the Elwell residence, heard a report which is believed to have been the fatal revolver shot. Ten minutes before a mail carrier had deposited half a dozen letters in the box in the front foyer of the four-story white stone house in which the dead man lived.

Miss Ida Larsen, Mr. Elwell's housekeeper, and the only servant inside, arrived to begin her daily work and found her employer in the reception room. An opened letter lay in his hand. Gentry, trainer of his Palm Beach racing stable, mailed in Latonia, Kentucky, was lying on the floor.

The police believe the murdered man returned home shortly before daylight, removed his evening clothes in his bedroom on the third floor, donned pajamas and was sitting down when the mail man rang the bell. Money and valuable jewelry were untouched in the bedroom.

HAD LOST AT RACES.

While Elwell's chauffeur claimed that his employer was in financial difficulties as a result of reckless bets at the races, his friends deny this.

In a suit for separation brought in 1916 by Mrs. Helen D. Elwell, his widow, she said her husband's fortune amounted to $500,000. She declared he received royalties amounting to $7,000 a year from the various books on bridge whist which he had written and earned $18,000 a year as a teacher of whist to society women.

In addition, Mrs. Elwell said he made from $1,000 to $10,000 a night at bridge, and one evening won $30,000. She was granted $60 a week temporary alimony and later a satisfactory agreement was reached out of court.

N. E. DEMOCRATS FIGHT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

be seen in epitome in the case of Massachusetts. Of thirty-six delegates elected in a free-for-all primary thirty-one are "hitter adders" in their fight against any League of Nations. Most of the other five are against Article 10.

CITE CASE OF BAY STATE.

The powerful swing from passive dislike of the League to active and forceful opposition is reflected in efents in Rhode Island. In that State, until recently, "mild" opponents of the League were represented by six members of the State delegation to San Francisco. The other four were out-and-out foes of the covenant in anything like its present shape. But within a few days there has been a change. Today the Rhode Island delegation stands seven to three against the Wilson League and all it means.

The League fight in Rhode Island was typical. The Wilsonians were led by National Committeeman P. H. Quinn. The opposition was marshalled by Attorney John J. Fitzgerald, powerful political leader and close to the people. The most powerful force in lining up the delegates from New England's smallest State against the League was the unceasing able fact that they had been instructed to fight it by the State convention which elected them. Even the most florid eloquence of the most polished sophistry could not get around that fact.

MAY SWING ANTIS.

Anti-leaguers today divide the State delegation to San Francisco as follows:

Against the league in any form—Attorney John J. Fitzgerald, Herve Lapsley, Attorney Stephen J. Chase, Mrs. Della Johnson, Mrs. Robert Newton, Luigi de Pasquale, deputy Democratic floor leader in the House, and F. J. Murphy of Newport.

Against Article 10, but for "mild reservations"—National Committeeman P. H. Quinn and Theodore Green, one-time party nominee for Governor. Doubtful—Mrs. Fred Sennet.

Mr. de Pasquale, Mrs. Newton and Mr. Murphy are converts of the anti-leaguers. Mrs. Senner, now listed as doubtful, is expected to follow them into the camp of the majority.

There is even a possibility that Quinn and Green may ultimately join forces with their brother delegates to make Rhode Island solid against the league and to keep their own faith with the convention which elected them.

DOCTOR DEAD, WIDOW HELD

Mother of Four Children Accused in Shooting at Pawcatuck, Ct.

Kenyon admitted that she did not remember having pulled the trigger. While the physician was lying in the street near death, Mrs. Kenyon ordered out a plea for attending doctors to save his life because she loved him.

SHOT DURING QUARREL.

According to county and police officials Mrs. Kenyon made certain statements following the shooting concerning the birth of her youngest son—seven months old. The woman's husband, with whom she had been living up to the time of the tragedy, refuses to discuss the case. He did say, however, that his wife "had four children, two by her first marriage, and two boys, who are safe."

According to statements made to the authorities, Mrs. Kenyon said that she visited Dr. Tetlow in his apartments the night previous to the shooting and that they had quarrelled. Later she returned, she said, with a revolver, which she had taken from a bureau drawer in her home, which is less than 500 feet away from the home of the slain man, on Williams street.

She met the doctor in the living room, she declared, and threatened to take her life during another quarrel. He implored her not to and urged her to hand him the weapon. While pacing him the revolver, according to her story, he declared his intention of taking his life. Mrs. Kenyon said that she was unable to remember anything that followed.

TOLD DOCTORS TO HURRY.

Dr. Scanlon, who is also medical examiner in Westerly, just across the river from this town, was the first to reach the scene. He said that he had been summoned by a woman who said she was Mrs. Kenyon and that Dr. Tetlow was dying, urging the physician to come quickly.

On entering the house he was met by Mrs. Kenyon who was in a highly excited state and, according to the physician said: "He's in here and he is dying, hurry for I love him."

Dr. Scanlon said he found the wounded physician with his head propped up by a pillow. He was dying fast. Mrs. Kenyon stood looking on, wringing her hands and sobbing. Shortly before Dr. Tetlow died she asked if he was dead, said the doctor.

Votes for Sunday Sports

Edgartown, June 12—At a special town meeting it was voted 69 to 6 to adopt the Sunday sports bill. Vineyard Haven accepted the measure two weeks ago.

CAN THIS MAN WIN?

The eighth article of the American's review of the Democratic presidential possibilities deals with Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Wilson leader in Congress, and follows:

By EARL B. GADDIS,

Private Secretary for Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock is not making a campaign for the presidential nomination and has no campaign manager. He permitted the use of his name in Nebraska only because he wanted to get an expression from Democrats as to the acceptance or rejection of the League reservations in the peace treaty.

The Senator hoped that W. J. Bryan, who was advocating acceptance of the treaty with the Lodge reservations, would allow the use of his name as a presidential aspirant. He did not, however. The Senator, therefore, received the overwhelming indorsement of the Democratic primaries for the place.

Bryan received less than one-tenth the number of votes the Senator did, although the voters knew they could write Bryan's name in, and were, in fact, asked to do so in some localities by Bryan friends.

If Senator Hitchcock's name, when presented to the San Francisco convention, receives other votes than those of his home State it will be because he is regarded by the people outside Nebraska as a man of vision, courage, ability, and poise—all of which four coalition he has abundantly demonstrated in his fourteen years in Congress.

He comes from the right part of the country to make the proper appeal for his party, he had the most important committee membership of any member of Congress during the war, he favors the use of light wines and beer, though he accepts the constitutional mandate abolishing the saloon, and he represents more than any other candidate the most reasonable and forceful attitude that could be taken on the peace treaty.

IS INDEPENDENT.

He is a man of independence, moreover—and his record, in this respect, has won for him a support which carried to election, it seems to me, would make him available for the nomination in every sense of the word.

BRITISH CUT-RATE PLOT TO CRUSH U. S. SHIPPING REVEALED

ENORMOUS REBATES OFFERED

Lord Inchcape's Letter Discloses Pact With Japs to Drive America Off Seas

Washington, June 12—That all the powerful British shipping interests have combined to precipitate a great cash-rate war in the hope of crushing the dangerous competition of the United States was disclosed today by a letter from Lord Inchcape, formerly British controller of shipping, to English steamship concerns.

The letter, which reached every large British merchant line, recently came into the hands of the American steamship Owners' Association, by whom it was made public.

Lord Inchcape, during the war controller of shipping, is now president of the board of directors of the Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Company, probably the most powerful as well as the largest British shipping company. His circular, revealing how the rate war is to be conducted, follows:

"London, April 1, 1920.

"Dear Sir:

"To those exporters from Japan (including Formosa), China (including Manchuria), and Hong Kong to Europe, or to ports via Europe, who, from the first of May to 31st October next, may have found it to their interest to confine their support and shipments during that period to the steamship lines of the Conference, we shall be happy to allow a rebate of seven and a half per cent. on those freights contributed.

"To those who, on the 30th of April, 1921, may have found it to their interest so to confine their support and shipments during the previous twelve months to the said line, we will allow an additional two and a half per cent. on freights contributed during the six months ending April 30, 1921.

By means of these heavy rebates the Peninsular Oriental Line will, it is believed, be able to eliminate considerable American competition, but another result of the letter disclosed that Japanese, Swedish and Norwegian lines are in league with the British to wipe out American competition through heavy rebates.

BROOKLINE LEGION HOLDS COUNTRY CIRCUS

MEN TAKE $90 FROM QUINCY WOMAN'S SAFE

A sale of a package of cigarettes, a change in bill and a conversation with a stranger cost Mrs. Abbie Feltis of Quincy $90. The money disappeared from the safe in her store at No. 1050 Hancock street. A stranger entered her store and purchased a package of cigarets, tendering a $10 bill in payment. Mrs. Feltis went to the safe to make change. Meantime a second stranger entered the store and engaged the woman in conversation, while the cigarette customer went into a telephone booth. After both men had left Mrs. Feltis discovered the loss of the money from the safe.

Says Mother-in-Law Alienated Wife

Mrs. Nellie Pace and Dr. Andrew G. Farquhar. At top, Mrs. Andrew G. Farquhar. These three are principals in a $25,000 alienation suit.

Alleging that his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nellie L. Pace, widow of the late John Pace, of No. 9 Cross street, Medford, had alienated the affections of his wife, Marion, to whom he was married only last January, Dr. Andrew G. Farquhar, a well-known dentist of High street, Medford, has filed a suit for $25,000 against the widow in the Middlesex County Court.

The case is considered unique in legal circles, inasmuch as the couple are still living together as man and wife after a separation of one month following several weeks of married life at the home of the wife's mother, on Cross street, Medford.

According to Mrs. Pace, the suit has been brought to frighten her to relinquish the guardianship of her daughter, who is still a minor, to whom two-thirds of the estate of her late husband reverts by law, he having died intestate about seven years ago, after having accumulated a comfortable fortune consisting of real estate.

"My daughter and only child, Marion, has been estranged from me by this man," declared Mrs. Pace. "She has been induced to remain away from me, her mother, whom she loved all her life with her whole heart and soul. For the past eight weeks I have not seen her once.

"Marion was out of school but a short time last year when she became acquainted with him, through some professional work done by him. Although she wanted to be married to him, I objected on the ground that she was too young, for she was only nineteen then. I finally consented in order to please her and the marriage took place early this year. He then came and made his home with us.

"It wasn't a week after the marriage before trouble occurred. He ignored me entirely, rarely speaking and seldom answered my greeting. He seemed to have an influence over Marion, for she would mind him.

"Finally, when matters became acute, Marion asked him to leave the house, which he did. He lived apart, but after a month it was agreed that Marion should again live with him, which she did and has since remained with him."

5,376,000 POUNDS OF RAW SUGAR IN HUB PORT

Laden with 5,376,000 pounds of raw sugar, the second big shipment to arrive this week, the American steamship, Lake Stirling, Captain Thorpe, arrived from Preston, Cuba, after a seven-day trip. The cargo was consigned to the Revere Sugar Refining Company, and will be refined at the Charlestown plant in the near future. Three more big cargoes of sugar are en route to Boston from Cuba, and will arrive within the next few days.

HAVERHILL SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT QUITS

Superintendent of Schools Clarence H. Dempsey has resigned as head of the organization, to take effect at the end of the school year and not later than July 31. He has been elected superintendent of schools in Milton, with a salary of $4,000 for the first year and further increase promised. He receives $4,000 here. His decision was unexpected. He came here from Malden in 1913.

DR. KEOWN SENT TO ASYLUM

Lynn Man, Who as a Lawyer Criticized Courts, Is Called Mentally Unsound

James A. Keown, Lynn attorney and physician, who won freedom for Mrs. Mary A. Rice, committed to a Worcester sanatorium as an insane person, and who, during a similar case in April, 1919, was released by Judge Loring for calling all judges "rascals" and their decisions "punk," was himself ordered to an insane hospital by Judge Callahan in the Superior Court at Salem.

His commitment to Danvers followed testimony that Dr. Keown had concealed an automobile sold on a conditional bill of sale.

Dr. Keown, appearing for himself, stated that in twenty-five years he had found that lawyers never did anything for him, but relieve him of his money. He declared that all judges were against him, and said Chief Justice Rugg told him that he could never get justice in this State.

Dr. George L. Walton, authority on mental diseases, testified that Dr Keown is mentally unsound, especially in his idea that all justices are malignantly opposed to him.

SWISS MISSION VISITS LOWELL COTTON MILLS

A visit to the cotton mills of Lowell was the first event on the program of the eleven members of the Swiss Economic Mission, who arrived in Boston from Washington. On Monday they will be guests of the National Cotton Manufacturers' Association at luncheon at the Exchange Club, and in the afternoon will visit Salem mills.

They will later go to Fall River, New Bedford, Pawtucket and Worcester.

GOVERNMENT TO FIGHT WOOD

Will Appeal the Quashing of Indictments Charging Excess Profits

The government will appeal the decision quashing the indictments for profiteering against the American Woolen Companies of New York and Massachusetts and President William M. Wood.

This announcement was made by the Department of Justice. At the same time rumors were heard that there might have been a leak from the United States Court regarding the outcome of the indictments.

Employees of the American Woolen Company at Lawrence held a demonstration in honor of Wood's release from impending prosecution, in which a number of prominent persons took part.

Federal Judge Mack in New York sustained a demurrer interposed by Charles E. Hughes, special counsel for the defence, which held that woolen goods did not constitute wearing apparel and therefore did not come within the meaning of the Lever act.

The possibility of a leak having occurred was based on the fact that the stock of the American Woolen Company jumped five points Wednesday after a widely circulated report that the indictments had been quashed. The stock was active again yesterday, showing an extreme gain of four points and closed at a new high today.

The Lawrence celebration was featured by a bonfire in Shawsheen Village, near the Wood estate in Andover, following a telegram made to the American Woolen Company band.

WANTS STREETS ROPED AT NIGHT FOR CHILDREN

City Clerk James Donovan, now acting Mayor, stated he would appeal to Mayor Peters upon his latter's return from Maine to have certain Boston streets roped off each evening in order that safe playgrounds might be provided for children. The plan, which originated in Lowell, would be to bar all vehicle travel on the street. The South End particularly would benefit by the plan, according to the city clerk, whose home is in that district.

GENERAL EDWARDS TO BE GIVEN PROMOTION

The reorganized army bill was read today before the officers at army headquarters. Twenty-one major-generals were to be made. Seven of these are already in that rank permanently, leaving fourteen to be raised from the list of brigadier-generals. Major-General C. R. Edwards stands at the head of brigadiers and it is said that he has the authority that he will be made a permanent major-general.

FIND "DROWNING BOY" DRESSING HIMSELF

After a record run of three and a half miles in 12 minutes in answer to a hurry call that a boy was drowning, the Malden police ambulance arrived at the banks of the Saugus River to find that Frank Fowler, twelve years old, had somehow rescued himself and himself. Frank admitted that he had a narrow escape, and he was saved by three playmates.

BARGAIN HUNTERS SWARM MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

New York, June 12—Thousands of bargain hunters swarmed into Madison Square Garden to avail themselves of the co-operative "cash and carry" sale and bought suits and overcoats as low as $14.75. Several policemen and a hundred private detectives directed the crowd. Mohair suits were sold in the hottest corner of the hall. Overcoats were exhibited in a cooler room.

$5,000,000 ALREADY PAID ON INCOME TAXES

More than $5,000,000 has been paid on the second instalment of Federal income taxes due at the office of Internal Revenue Collector John J. Mitchell on or before the close of business, 5 p. m., June 15, and the amount at least $300,000 has been received from about 6,000 taxpayers who sent their certified checks for the bills which were mailed to them last week.

MONTREAL STREET CAR KILLS BOSTON SOLDIER

Montreal, June 12—William Feeley of Boston, a returned soldier, who had just arrived in this city, was struck and killed by a trolley car on St. Catherine street. According to witnesses, Feeley stepped out from behind a car going East and was knocked down by one going West.

'Our Mary' Is Through With Nevada Courts

San Francisco, June 12.—Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, the Mary Pickford of the movies, has asked the State of Nevada to excuse her from appearing to defend the divorce decree recently granted her from Owen Moore, her former husband.

Through her attorneys, Gavin McNab and F. A. McCarron, Mrs. Fairbanks made application in the First Judicial District Court for leave to file a special appearance, which was granted by Judge Langan.

The attorneys then gave notice that they will on July 16, at Minden, Nev., move for an order to declare null and void the summons upon Mrs. Fairbanks to appear in the proceedings instituted by Attorney-General Fowler to annul the divorce decree. Discarding legal verbiage Mary Pickford's attorneys hold that the Nevada courts have no jurisdiction now as their client is a resident of California that Attorney-General Fowler's complaint is unverified, that he does not state facts sufficient for legal action and that no good reason exists why Mrs. Fairbanks should return to Nevada for the final submission of her divorce decree.

Mrs. Fairbanks asks that the service of a summons upon her be quashed so that she will not have to appear in the Nevada courts again and further serves notice that she claims the legal right to appear only by the motion which her attorneys will submit.

Thus the "sweetheart of the movies" stakes her rights at Attorney-General Fowler and says she is through with Nevada courts.

HOLD FUNERAL OF FR. O'DONNELL

Pastor of St. Anthony's, Allston, Is Buried From His Late Church

The funeral of Rev. Hugh Roe O'Donnell, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, Allston, was held in the church today at 10 a. m. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John Griffin, Rev. John Kelley and Rev. John F. Kelleher assisting. At 8 a. m. a special mass for the children of the parish was celebrated by Rev. Edward J. Burke.

At 3 o'clock Friday the body of Father O'Donnell was moved from the rectory to the church, where it lay in state till the funeral. Mourning parishioners of St. Anthony's, as well as other parishes of the diocese, thronged the church to pay honor to their pastor. Members of the fourth degree Knights of Columbus and of the Holy Name Society of the parish served as a guard of honor.

The office of the dead was said Friday for Father O'Donnell by visiting priests and brother priests of the parish. The Married Ladies' Sodality also met Friday to recite prayers for the dead.

ROGER C. FENN AND MISS BALDWIN MARRY

Fitzwilliam Depot, N. H., June 12.—This little town was the scene of a picturesque wedding high up on the hills to the west of Laurel Lake today, following a line of ancestry from Maine to have certain Boston streets roped off each evening in order that safe playgrounds might be provided for children. The plan, which originated in Lowell, would be to bar all vehicle travel on the street. The South End particularly would benefit by the plan, according to the city clerk, whose home is in that district.

Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tileston Baldwin of No. 259 Beacon street, Boston, was married to Roger C. Fenn of Concord, Mass., son of Dean and Mrs. William Lane Fenn of Cambridge, Mass., in the Summer home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bridegroom, Dean Fenn of the Harvard Divinity School. Donald B. Fenn was the best man. The bridegroom was graduated from Harvard University in 1915, and is now a master at the Middlesex School in Concord, Mass. He was in the service overseas with the 301st Infantry, 76th Division. His bride is a graduate of Miss Winsor's School in Boston, and she is a member of the 1916 Sewing Circle.

CONFISCATED MEXICAN LANDS ARE RETURNED

Special Cable Dispatch.

Mexico City, June 12.—Provisional President Adolfo De La Huerta has signed a decree ordering the restoration of all properties, mines and ranches confiscated by the several governments of Mexico since 1916 in accordance with the declarations contained in the Plan of Agua Prieta.

The return of the properties will be made as soon as documentary evidence is produced to prove rightful ownership.

ROXBURY MAN FINDS WIFE DYING OF POISON

Mrs. Lillian Lydon, thirty-one, of No. 8 Roby street, Roxbury, was discovered by her husband, George Lydon, lying across the bed in her room in a dying condition. At the City Hospital she was found to be suffering from corrosive sublimate poisoning. Her condition is regarded as serious.

CRUSADE IN MEXICO TO CRUSH BOLSHEVIKS

Mexico City, June 12.—A vigorous crusade will be started at once to crush Bolshevik agitation in Mexico, it was announced today by advisers to Provisional President Adolfo de la Huerta. Officials declared that Bolshevik and I. W. W. agents will be summarily dealt with.

DR. PRENTISS C. HOYT DIES AT BALL GAME

Worcester, June 12.—Dr. Prentiss C. Hoyt, professor of English in Clark University for sixteen years, died suddenly while attending a baseball game in West Boylston. He was active in Boy Scout work and in the Pilgrim church.

New York American Goes to 3 Cents

New York, June 12.—The New York American prints the following today:

Beginning Monday, June 14, the price of the New York American will be three cents per copy.

The New York American publishes the best newspaper for the best people.

Its readers are accustomed to and rightfully demand the highest standards of excellence.

It has always secured the best in news services, correspondents, contributors, editors, special features, pictures—everything that goes to make the leading newspaper of America.

The American has never hesitated at cost nor been daunted by difficulties. Whatever was worth having in news facts, editorial information, or feature entertainment, this newspaper has secured and delivered to its readers.

In addition to being generous with its readers, the American has been liberal with its employes and agents. Its ideals have been the highest standard of production for itself, the highest standard of achievement for its readers, and the highest standard of living for those who are employed in the creation, construction and distribution of this newspaper.

To maintain these high standards in the face of constantly increasing prices of paper, of machinery and material, and of proper and wholly deserved increases in compensation to its employes, and of legitimate profits to dealers, it is necessary to raise the price of the daily New York American to three cents.

The contract price for white paper has increased 200 per cent. in the past year. Extra paper above contract has increased 600 per cent. in price. The American was confronted with the necessity of either raising its rates or reducing its Quality.

THE NEW YORK AMERICAN has always had a clientele that is appreciative of excellence.

THE NEW YORK AMERICAN, therefore, with the purpose of maintaining its superiority over all other New York papers in excellence of news and features, raises its circulation rate the minimum amount.

Advertising rates have already been increased, and advertisers, realizing the necessity and justice of the increase, are already bearing their share of the increased costs.

The American has absolute confidence that its readers will accept the new price in an understanding spirit. The only other alternative would have been to lower the American's high standards of quality—and we know that our readers WANT and are willing to pay for the BEST.

CHESTER R. LAWRENCE, DEAD AT AGE OF 50

Chester R. Lawrence, former State street stock broker, candidate for Governor on the Prohibition ticket in 1916 and candidate for Lieutenant-Governor as a Progressive the previous year, is dead at his home, No. 7 Copeland street, Roxbury. He is survived by a widow and one daughter. Mr. Lawrence was born in Cambridge and was 50 years old. He had been in failing health for two years and gave up active business six months ago. Funeral services will be held at the Dudley Street Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon.

BRITISH PLANES FORCE OUT AMERICAN PLANT

New York, June 12.—Failure of Congress to protect the local market against the invasion of British airplanes caused the closing of the Churchill street plant in Buffalo of the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Corporation, it was stated. This is said to mark the withdrawal of the company from the commercial airplane field.

Harding is connected with a large wholesale packing concern and is an instructor in automobiles for the Massachusetts Board of Education, University Extension.

NORTHEASTERN COLLEGE HEAD QUITS DEANSHIP

Frank Palmer Speare, president of Northeastern College, B. S., C. L. C. A., who for twenty-two years has served as dean of the school of law, has resigned from the deanship owing to the pressure of his duties as president.

Everett A. Churchill, a member of the faculty of the Huntington School, has been appointed to the position and will take up his duties at once.

CHILD'S CUSTODY GIVEN MOTHER

Woman Bank Employe, Pending Husband's Divorce Petition, Will Possess Daughter

Judge Hammond of the Superior Court gave Mrs. Sarah F. McDonough, aged twenty-six, an employe of the Federal Reserve Bank, the custody of her six-year-old daughter, pending a hearing on a divorce suit brought by her husband, James Mcs Donough, aged forty-five, a retired machinist in the United States Navy.

Mrs. McDonough related to Judge Hammond the story of her marital troubles, which resulted in McDonough's leaving the house in which they lived at Quincy. She was compelled, she said, to take up the study of shorthand, and obtained a position in the Treasury Department at Washington. Later she got a position in the Rigge National Bank of that city.

While in Washington Mrs. McDonough said she sent her little girl to school, but McDonough got possession of the child, who she said was not with him at the home of Miss Katherine Moriarty, No. 89 Francis street, Roxbury. She was denied the privilege of seeing her daughter unless Miss Moriarty was present. Mrs. McDonough complained that her daughter was being taught to call Miss Moriarty "grandmother."

Mrs. McDonough said she had no idea of returning to Washington, and would provide a home for her daughter at No. 85 Shelton road, Quincy.

McDonough testified that his wife took a course in stenography without his knowledge and consent. He admitted that he was well able to provide for both his wife and child as he was receiving a pension of $1,700 a year from the government. He was retired from the navy, following injuries received in an explosion of a dreadnought.

FEAST OF SACRED HEART OBSERVED BY CATHOLICS

In honor of the Feast of the Sacred Heart special services were held in all Catholic churches, attended by throngs of worshippers. The festival was probably never before been observed in a larger way by the people of this community, churches where novenas and triduums were held during the last nine or three days, respectively, having had record-breaking congregations.

The day is especially widely observed here because of the fact that the League of the Sacred Heart is one of the most flourishing societies of this diocese.

AUTO VICTIM MAY HAVE FRACTURED SKULL

While crossing Commonwealth avenue at Long avenue, Allston, William A. Cushing was struck and injured by Robert K. Wilkie of No. 33 Clark street, Newton Centre.

Upon examination at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, to which Mr. Cushing was removed, physicians believe that fracture of the skull may be present. Mr. Cushing, who is 34, he was found to be suffering from a possible fracture of the skull.

WINTHROP GIRL WILL WED TUFTS GRADUATE

Boston and Winthrop society is interested in the engagement and announcement of Miss Irene Beard, popular Winthrop girl, and Dana E. Harding, Tufts, '13, of Glenville avenue, Allston. Miss Beard lives on Sagamore avenue, Winthrop, and is one of six sisters, all prominent in church and social affairs.

Harding is connected with a large wholesale packing concern and is an instructor in automobiles for the Massachusetts Board of Education, University Extension.

SHOE MAKERS TO WORK IN SHIP YARDS

Haverhill, June 12—Several hundred shoemakers who are loafing, because of dull times in shoe factories, have signed up to work in the ship yards in Quincy and Portsmouth, N. H. Employment agents have been here and offered them jobs. Shoemakers out of work in Exeter, N. H., are taking similar steps to meet the H. C. L.

SENDS 2,000 PAIRS OF SHOES BY PARCEL POST

North Adams, June 12—Owing to express and freight congestion many local manufacturing concerns are now shipping goods by parcel post. Weber Brothers' shoe factory is sending out 2,000 pairs of shoes each week through the local postoffice.

50 PORTO RICANS WILL TRAIN AT CAMP DEVENS

Fifty students from Porto Rico will report at Camp Devens, among the 1,200 students from the high schools and colleges in Eastern and Northeastern Departments for the annual annual Reserve Officers' Training Camp, which opens for a six-weeks' course on June 21.

PLAN PICNIC NEXT WEEK FOR HUNGARIAN RELIEF

A benefit picnic for the Relief of Hungarian Sufferers will be held next Thursday in Municipach Grove, Roxbindale, by the American Committee for Hungarian Relief. Entertainments will begin at 10 a. m. and continue until 8 p. m.

Washington, June 12—A vocational training system inaugurated this month will develop the United States Marine Corps from its present strength of about 17,000 men up to the 27,400 just authorized by Congress, recruiting officials announced today.

Pastor Dines Like King in Church Cellar

The Rev. Clement Crawley and his wife and one of their children (right), of Lawrence, who are forced by the housing shortage to make his church their home. Miss Florence Hovle is shown at left.

How would you like to be a minister of the Gospel, travel 1,500 miles to accept a call and at the end of the journey find your home in a cellar?

This is the experience of the Rev. Clement Crawley, pastor of the Salem Street Church of Lawrence, who, with his wife and three young sons, live in the church parlors and dine and cook their meals in the concrete basement of the church. They were forced to accept this strange abode by the acute house shortage in Lawrence, where conditions are quite as bad as they are in Boston.

Some men, with a delicate wife and three small sons, one of them is an infant, would be "fed up" about living in such quarters. But a cellar home does not put the good nature of the Rev. Mr. Crawley, who says he doesn't mind his new home and is grateful, in the present Lawrence shortage, to have even the church to live in.

GLAD TO LIVE IN CHURCH.

"Good sports!" said he. "Don't call it that. Just say we are very fortunate people to have a roof over our heads at all. For over a month, now, the church has known we needed a house. Therefore, for over a month my good parishioners have, with devotion and sacrifice of time and labor, hunted a house for their pastor. They have not succeeded. So my family came on, and we had to live in two furnished rooms for a day or so, which was hard with a young baby and two other boys.

The Rev. Mr. Crawley smiled as his eyes revolved upon stained glass church windows in a room where once probably prayer meetings were held, or meetings of the solemn board of church deacons, a room where now Mr. Crawley studies his sermons, while Mrs. Crawley sits and sews and tends her baby, young Master Walter, aged nine months.

GOT ONLY BOOKS FROM WEST.

"The remedy? Why that, of course, is more houses, more building. Of course I have heard of profiteering in rent, but as yet I have not studied it, having been here only a few days.

"All I have been able to move here of my goods from Wisconsin, where we came from, is just half a dozen books. The rest is stagnated somewhere, in a freight jam, east of Chicago."

VICTORIES OVER PIRATES FILL THE BRAVES FULL OF COURAGE

CUBS HERE FOR FOUR GAMES

Mitchell's Band in Doldrums, but Are Apt to Get Going Any Time

By NICK FLATLEY.

All steamed up by three successive victories from the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Braves expected to entertain the largest crowd of the season at the biggest baseball pastime in captivity. The latest brand of Boston baseball surely deserves popularity, and will win it promptly if continued for any length of time.

The Braves now have four pitchers, and, are just about ready to exchange, but that ailment is disappearing, and the tall south's flinging arm is as good as ever. Hughie had a fine start this year, and is due to pick up the same trail, now that his trials are vanished.

He was booked to go in today, if things ran according to schedule, and naturally was very confident, the Braves' defence being what it is just now. Provided Hugh didn't come up to preliminary form, manager Stallings had Kayo, Hearn and Rudolph lingering about.

The latter believes that the trouble with his arm is about ended and that ere day may find the old scraper able to twist the apple away from hostile bats. Richard would be a most valuable addition to the attack, now that the team is sporting once more.

Mitchell's Cubs Down for Four Games

Hon. Frederick Mitchell and his aggravating Cubs were on hand at Braves Field, where the winning streak is being engineered by the native sons. Hon. Fred and his athletes have been hitting the junction lately, probably because of worry at not being home for the convention.

They play four games with the Braves, and there isn't much relief in sight, as the Westerners have come back to life, and are now practising a very nifty brand of baseball. The Braves have just completed polishing off the Pirates, three in a row, and thereby getting even for last disasters in the West.

As the Cubs also swept through their home series with the Stallingsters, more revenge of the same kind was anxiously desired these next few days. Several of the Braves pitchers have come back to form, and accordingly the team looks good to be ultimate champions, unless the enemy could get just one run by the saucer, and that loner was something in the way of a gift.

Dana Fillingim brought out his very best spitball for the final joust against the shoot, and breezed through to smooth shutout. Just one hostile got as far as third on the opening round, and only two others to second. Merely six arrived at first, four on hits and a pair on passes. And one of the hits was a present, coming because of a mixup between Pick and the Rabbit.

John L. Sullivan in Role of Pirate Killer

John Lawrence Sullivan essayed the role of Pirate killer and showed just as much punch as his illustrious namesake. He came to the platter on four occasions, and each time banged out a safety. He didn't quit in the real wrecks of the eighth, when the pastime had assumed the appearance of another of those extra inning affairs.

MOTHER SCORES FOR DEMPSEY

Frail and Aged Parent Testifies Boxer Gave Her $37,000 in Three Years

San Francisco, June 12.—A touch of pathos was lent to the Jack Dempsey trial, when the frail and aged mother of the heavyweight champion of the world took the witness stand in his behalf. And when her story was told, in a soft but unwavering voice, it was admitted that she had scored for Dempsey.

"Ever since Jack was eighteen he took care of me, and always saw that I was comfortable," said the fond mother. "I was wholly dependent upon him—as I never wanted for anything that he could provide.

"In about three years Jack gave to me in gifts or loans about $37,000."

Prior to placing defence witnesses on the stand John W. Preston, of counsel for Dempsey said to the jury:

"We intend to prove that the indictment is untrue and that the questionable which Dempsey signed is true in every detail. We are prepared to show that Jack Dempsey had no intention of ever evading the draft and that Jack Dempsey is not now nor never was afraid of man or beast.

"And we will show you, too, that the only mistake Jack Dempsey ever made in his life was when he married this woman and tried to reclaim her from the life that she led. We will show to you that the moment Jack Dempsey got into a financial condition so that he had provided for his wife and other family dependents that he made preparation to get into the war.

"And we will show you, too, that Jack Dempsey, during the course of the war, boxed at nearly one hundred benefits for war charities and raised over $365,000 for these funds.

"When the defence is concluded you will bring in an acquittal."

Dempsey will be the last witness in the trial. He probably will go on the stand Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning. It is expected the case will go to the jury late Tuesday.

TAD'S TIDBITS

HE KNEW SOMETHING

Pop Cornwell tells us a pip that happened at the old Ardmore Sporting Club years ago.

"Just before the main event on those days," said Pop, "they used to have a battle royal. Eight colored guys were put into the ring, and the man who was on his feet at the finish got all the jack.

"There was a black gent in the ring the night I speak of and his moniker was Deacon Ellison. He was so black that you could see him in a dark room.

"Well, Deacon tore after the other seven guys this night in the battle royal. He kicked, bit, elbowed, chucked and tripped them. He finally downed the whole seven and left the ring on the opposite side from his opponents.

"He collected the money and we forgot about him. That night after the show was over I was talking to Kid Sullivan on a corner. There in a doorway near the street car terminal was the Deacon. He was waiting. He was watching the people get on the car one by one, and still he waited.

"Do you live around here, boy?" asked Sullivan of the Deacon.

"No, suh, piped Ellison. 'Ah live in Souf Washn.'

"Why don't you get a car? You'll miss the last one in a minute or so," said Sullivan.

"'Ah'm just a bit careful,' chirped the Deacon. 'There's many a way to win a battle royal, but I didn't step to think THEY'S ONLY ONE WAY HOME.'"

Fulton Looking for Trouble

Fred Fulton is back in New York looking for a muss. He was quite successful out in Seattle, winning every bout he had.

He tried to get permission to box in 'Frisco, but Dan O'Brien, the police captain who doubles as the fights, refused him to show, as a year or so ago the police put on a benefit. All of the boxers in town appeared except Fulton. He got himself in bad then, and it looks as though he is through in the city by the Golden Gate.

Leo Flynn Buys Handcuffs

Kid Norfolk, the "dark horse" slugger, almost turned Leo Flynn's hair white up in Rochester last week. He fought John Lester Johnson up there, and after the fight, met Johnson on the street and fought ten more rounds, boots, teeth and elbows allowed. An hour later he met Johnson again and rolled around the block with him, and at 11 o'clock, at the railroad station, staged another rough and tumble go.

"I don't mind that guy liking to fight," piped Flynn, "but any time he starts I want a box office. There's no nourishment in those street fights, giving every one a free look."

Canada Cal's Cheerful Chirps

It is much pleasanter to be going to sing than to be going to Sing Sing.

Whither are we drifting? America strains at the knot to dissolve marriage ties and calmly swallows the camel of prohibition.

That's a good sign.

DOWNES MEETS BOYLE TODAY

Boys Booked to Box Twelve Rounds at Spaulding Park, Lowell

BOUTS TODAY

South Boston Johnny Downes vs. Phinney Boyle at Lowell.
Paul Doyle vs. Louis Bogash, Tommy Shea vs. Johnny Russell, and Jimmy Arfsetti vs. Johnny Gray, Marlboro.
Vincent Martin vs. Joe Butler, Nashua, N. H.

By JACK CONWAY

South Boston Johnny Downes planned to continue his winning surge in his twelve-round bout with Phinney Boyle, which was booked to be decided at Spaulding Park, Lowell, today. It is the first open-air show arranged for the fans of the Spindle City and was expected to attract a large crowd.

Downes is one of the best lightweights in the East. His winning ligaists with New York Frankie Brown, Young Michaels and Ralph Brady attest to his class. During the past six months, Boyle has staged a sparkling come-back. Among other things he held Frankie (Young) Britt to a draw, and beat Billy Dole and Charley Parker.

A large delegation of Downes' Boston friends planned to take in the mill.

All-Star Card for Marlboro Fans

A banner all-star card has been arranged for the fans at Marlboro. The feature number finds Paul Doyle of Hub city with Louis Bogash as his opponent. This is a regular, big league battle, and it was believed that it would furnish plenty of thrilling moments. When Doyle and Bogash met in Boston last Winter honors were even after twelve sessions of torrid milling. Both boxers advanced the information that they would grab the decision today.

So that everybody would be happy two more twelve-round matches were arranged. One pairs Johnny Russell against Tommy Shea. Both of these youths hail from New York. The other gives Jimmy Frizetti, clever and hard-hitting Brockton lightweight, Johnny Gray of Chelsea as an opponent.

Martin vs. Butler at Manchester, N. H.

At Nashua, N. H., Vincent Martin of Cambridge was down to try conclusions with Joe Butler of Rochester. This contest has been postponed twice on account of rain, but it was hoped that everything would be run off today to the queen's taste.

Jackson-Dundee Bout Lures the Fans

Boston fans recognize a real ring bout judging from the talk around the city in regard to the meeting between Johnny Dundee and Willie Jackson at Mechanics Building next Monday night under the direction of Joe Fenway A. A. It will be the second time these celebrated lightweights have met in a decision tussle. Their first decision battle was at New Haven and was declared a draw after fifteen thrilling rounds of mixing.

The office of the Fenway Club, No. 216 Washington street, reports a heavy demand for reservations.

Robinson Seeks Bout With Johnny Wilson

Jim MacDonald announces that George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight, has started training in the hope of getting the long-sought-for match with Johnny Wilson. Montreal promoters were prepared to stage a meeting between these two men, but Marty Killins decided that if was best for his champion not to box before his contest with Augie Ratner at Philadelphia on June 16. Robinson is one of the few men who has a decision to his credit over Wilson. A Wilson-Robinson match would make a good attraction for any club.

BOSTON YACHT PICKED TO WIN

Resolute Refitted with New Topmast for Race with Vanitie

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Newport, R. I., June 12.—The score of the cup defence elimination series stood Resolute 4, Vanitie 2, when the two graceful sloops reported at the starting mark for the seventh run of the series.

With a new topmast replacing the one carried away one mile from the finish in the sixth race, the Resolute was ready for her greatest performance, and a race equally as thrilling as those of the past few days seemed assured.

The sixth meeting of the pair designed the most sensational spectacle of the series, with the Resolute limping home with a broken topmast but first securing a lead on the Vanitie, and winning the event by virtue of her time allowance.

If ever a sloop deserved victory, however, that sloop was the Resolute and not even the staunchest of Vanitie supporters begrudge the crippled Boston yacht the honor that came to her and her skipper and crew.

Looked Like Resolute Crossed the Line First

From the start until within a few yards of the finish the Resolute was in the lead, and but for the splintered topmast and flapping topsail, she would have grasped home the winner in actual as well as corrected time. In fact many believed she had just nosed out the Vanitie and it was not until the official time was posted that it was learned the latter had picked her nose across the line in the lead.

To Charles Francis Adams goes the credit for her initial advantage, for his clever manoeuvring forced the Vanitie across the starting mark before the starting signal had sounded and made it necessary for Commodore Nichols to bring his boat about and send her once more over the line. And when he had done so, he found Skipper Adams and the Resolute camping on his weather bow, making it impossible for the Vanitie to obtain abreast of the Resolute without being blanketed. As Skipper Adams thereafter followed every move of the Vanitie, such conditions prevailed throughout the first leg of the race, and when the Resolute took the gybe the commanding position on the homeward trip.

BOSTON BOY TO LEAD PENN STATE ON TRACK

State College, Pa., June 12.—F. Morrill Hamilton, Boston, was chosen to lead the Penn State track team for next year. Morrill is one of Coach Martin's best distance men, specializing in the mile, and he was a member of the Penn State four-mile relay team, the Penn relays and also of the distance medley team that broke the intercollegiate indoor record last Winter.

"K. O." DONOVAN WINNER IN BROCKTON BATTLE

Brockton, June 12. — Knockout Donovan of this city was winner in twelve rounds over "Red" Allen of New York at the Farrington A. C. Gene Glamai of Lawrence was knocked out in the second round by Joe Adams of Brockton and Tommy Nee won from Tommy Sheehan in six rounds.

BUSH ON MOUND FOR RED SOX

Red Sox Pitcher Shows Fine Form in Warming Up Period; Shocker in for the Bowles

St. Louis, June 12.—"Bullet Joe" Bush of the Red Sox, who by his work in Chicago showed that he has returned to form, was Manager Barrow's selection to go to the mound today in the second game of the series. The warming-up period before game Joe showed a world of speed, a fine assortment of breaks, and as Urban Shocker of the Browns is shaping up in very much the same fashion, it looked as though the fans were to witness a fine pitching battle. The Boston players are elated over their showing against the Browns. When they landed in Chicago the Red Sox felt that an even break was the most they could hope to get. But they started right in and kept plugging and, as the result, took three in a row and lost the last game only by hard luck than anything else. Manager Barrow in particular is pleased at the way his pitchers have been going. Jones, Russell and Bush turned in good games in Chicago and Pennock might have won but for a balk and a wild throw by Peckinpaugh. Even then the Chicago club had to work into the eighth inning before they won the final battle, 5 to 4.

Red Sox Have Pitchers, Hitting and Spirit

Early in the Spring the Barrowmen were doped as hopelessly out of the running, but here they are coming along in third place with four pitchers hurling most excellent ball, a lot of batsmen who are dangerous at any time and a team spirit that did not exist last year when Bush and Mays were with the club.

The last game was rushing along well until the last half of the eighth. Weaver doubled and Jackson walked. Pelsch rolled a grounder to Foster, who threw wild to first and Weaver scored. John Collins, whose wild throw had put the Red Sox leading run over to the plate, singled and Jackson scored.

Barrow Satisfied by Result in Chicago

Pennock got himself in trouble in the eighth inning. He walked Weaver. With two down Pelsch singled and Weaver took third. A wild pitch stopped Weaver and Pelsch went to third. Pennock balked trying to get Pelsch off third and he scored after apparently he had been put out.

Three out of four from the White Sox earned Manager Barrow figures this club one-half of the tough going in the West.

PHILADELPHIA WOMEN WIN GRISCOM CUP

Philadelphia, June 12.—The Philadelphia women's golf team won the deciding match of the Griscom Cup at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, St. Martin's. A surprise of the day was the victory of Miss Ada Hall of the New York team over Mrs. R. H. Rawle, who had defeated Philadelphia team and women's Eastern champion, 2 and 1.

Two Feature Events at Revere Oval

Two feature events, either one of which could stand alone, have been arranged for the fans at the new Revere cycle track this evening.

The opener, a sprint event, brings together Orlando Piani, the Italian star, and Alf Grenda, one of the best in the sport. They will have it out in a best two-in-three affair.

In the main feature a three-cornered, 25-mile motor-paced race, the fans will have a chance to see their old favorite, Clarence Carman, in action.

Golf News and Notes

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

All United States golfers must do is in order to eventually capture the British golfing crowns is to keep plugging. Robert Gardner came within an ace of winning the British amateur championship at Muirfield and the British and Scots will know that Walter Hagen was at Deal before the great open championship is finished one 36 and July 1.

A few weeks ago Harry Hilton, veteran British golf writer and a former champion of Great Britain and the United States, went from London to witness the Oxford University golf team in action. He had heard so much of the prowess of Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered that he wished to observe them.

Hilton was struck by the game these Oxford students played, so much so that he wrote:

"As long as we can develop such youthful stars as Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered we need not fear the American invasion."

Hilton did not realize when he wrote that line that at the very next British championship, seven former champions would be eliminated and that in the final round none other than Cyril Tolley would be the sole survivor for Great Britain, and that he would shake off the American invasion after the hardest kind of a match at the thirty-seventh hole.

Outlaw is going so fast this year that when the field looks at the score board it does so to learn how many shots the champ is leading by. In the first day's play for the Jaques memorial cup at the Country Club, Francis had a 77 for the first round and a 71 for the second, for a total of 148. This started him away today on the final, eighteen with a lead of six shots on Parker Whittemore, who was in second place.

Whittemore shot a 77 and a 78 for a total of 155.

Pacing the home hole in the second round, Outlaw had a three for a 79. This would have been the record, a record made by Ted Ray. Francis was eager to do it. He drove well and hit a sweet shot to the left of the pin, but on the green and hole high. He remembered that advice "never up, never in," and went boldly for the three and the seventy. The ball raced past the hole and Francis missed coming back. Had he played safe he could have gotten a four, but he wanted to tie the record and was perfectly justified in going strong for the hole with his long putt.

Fred Wright, Jr., with rounds of 81—77—158 was in third. Other leading scores:

Ted Tewksbury	82	80—162
Eddie Lowery	78	84—162
Carver Schmidt	79	86—165
W. A. Whitney	84	82—166

Lipton Inspects His New Racing Yacht

New York, June 12.—Sir Thomas Lipton went to City Island today to inspect his challenger for the American cup, the Shamrock IV., and her trial horse, the twenty-three meter Shamrock.

The famous English yachtsman arrived here aboard the liner Celtic confident that he will be able to lift the cup this time and eager for the beginning of the trial races between the challenger and her sailing mate off Sandy Hook next week.

Man o' War Favorite in Belmont Stakes

New York, June 12.—Man o' War, prospective champion three-year-old for 1920, was scheduled to make another bid for fame today in the famous Belmont stakes.

The Riddle horse recently broke the mile record in the Withers, and his performance today at a mile and three-eighths aroused great interest here.

SCORES SCHOOL PARADE PLANS

Committeeman O'Connor Deplores Lack of Bands and Drinks for Parched Boys

Criticism of the officials in charge of the annual parade of the Boston high school regiment in not having military bands to inspire the boys and the people along the line of march is made by School Committeeman Charles S. O'Connor of South Boston.

He declared that the "penny wise and pound foolish" policy exercised in the conduct of the parade is detrimental to the welfare of the youths of the regiment, the future citizens of the State. As bands inspired the patriotic fervor and marching order of boys who grew to be leaders in the activities of the nation and the Commonwealth, there should be no change this late date, said O'Connor.

Advocating a field day for the high school boys on the day of the annual parade, O'Connor points out that there should be plenty of refreshments and food for them at the end of the march. He called attention to the fact that the youngsters tramped through the hot streets this year in their new uniforms and were parched for a drink, none of which was available, he asserted.

"The niggardly policy exercised by the school authorities in caring for the youngsters this year is a shocking example of faddism," said O'Connor. "It will be my aim to see that the parade next year excels the late one. I shall advocate and insist on more military bands in the line of march and a genuine field day following the parade."

FEAST OF SACRED HEART OBSERVED BY CATHOLICS

In honor of the Feast of the Sacred Heart special services were held in all Catholic churches, attended by throngs of worshipers. This festival has probably never before been observed in a larger way by the people of this community, churches where novenas and triduums were held during the last nine or three days, respectively, having had record-breaking congregations.

The day is especially widely observed here because of the fact that the League of the Sacred Heart is one of the most flourishing societies of this diocese.

AUTO VICTIM MAY HAVE FRACTURED SKULL

While crossing Commonwealth avenue at Long avenue, Allston, William E. Cushing, aged sixty-three, of No. 1295 Commonwealth avenue was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Robert K. Wilkie of No. 33 Clark street, Newton Centre.

Upon examination at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, to which Mr. Cushing was removed in the ambulance of District 14, he was found to be suffering from a possible fracture of the skull.

MARY AND RITZ GIRL SOLE SURVIVORS

The teatrical season of 1919-20 has been laid away in lavender, or deposited on the dump. In looking back over the offerings it seems to me that the dump is the better place for it.

Boston suffered far less than New York from bad plays, because the worst of them died before they reached us. What we saw was the season's best, and if you can pick a half dozen really fine attractions out of a couple of hundred which were shown here you are doing well.

New York has fifty theatres, Boston about ten. It stands to reason that we do not see more than a third of all the plays produced. Those that come here have survived in the struggle for existence. Ten other two-thirds sink into oblivion. Unfortunately a fair proportion of those which we never see are really good plays, but not commercially profitable, because of the kind of audiences who now patronize the theatre.

On the whole, however, it's just as well that New York tries out plays before sending them to Boston, we are spared many an unhappy evening.

Boston is rapidly losing its reputation for discrimination and intelligence at the theatre. For two or three seasons really clever plays have suffered here, while noisy, jazzy affairs have prospered enormously. The sad fate of "Tea For Three," "Not So Long Ago," and other good plays is engraved with Ziegfeld's Follies, selling out at $4 a seat, Ed Wynn packing them in at $3 per place, and other frivolous affairs getting big money.

Judging by the noise the Drama League manages to make you would think it had a million members, but when it comes to marching up and buying tickets for a good play, it's quite another story.

A Very Harmless Watchman.

When Charles Judels was a young man, not quite in your grandmother's time, he landed in New York broke, and the best job he could land was that of a watchman in Steeplechase Park, Coney Island. This was a collection of huge buildings, and as it was Winter, quite uninhabited. There were about one hundred watchmen's boxes and Judels had to ring them all in every hour.

Very brutal crooks were in the habit of entering these buildings and abstracting lead pipe and copper wire. Murdering a watchman would have been a pleasure to them, Judels knew this. Accordingly when he entered a building with his lantern he would stamp his feet and sing as loudly he could:

"Oh, I'm a jolly merry watchman,
As harmless as can be,
I keep my eyes shut very tight,
And I won't hurt you if you don't hurt me."

Judels boasts that more copper wire and lead pipe was stolen during his administration than ever before. There are people who say he was a better watchman than he is a Frenchman. In "Mary," but that doesn't worry him either.

No More House in Follies

I am told that Ziegfeld has forbidden the use of prohibition jokes and drinking scenes in his new Follies. He is a very astute person and he realizes that the American people have been "enjoying" prohibition a year now and it's getting to be a chestnut for joking purposes.

Playwrights, too, will have to cut out brilliant cabaret scenes with flowing bowls and magnums of champagne in a country where such things are unknown. The drama will have to get along without one of its most potent aids. How can a man write a farce without using some sort of an excuse for the behavior of the actors.

On the other hand, there is a sinister feature of our prohibition which should assist playwrights who manufacture melodrama. Young girls who would never dream of going to a man's room in the old days now go thoughtlessly and merrily to sample his private stock. There are lots of plays in situations brought about by this practice, and they have the merit of being true to life, not relics of a past gone beyond recall.

Anyway, Luce Is in Montreal.

John Luce, the press agent for the Shubert Theatre, conceived the idea a fortnight or so ago that he needed a vacation, and invented the scheme of motoring in his one-cylinder Chase & Sanborn coffee-grinder all the way to Canada. Luce had conceived the idea that Canada was wet and figured like the late General Phil Kearney, "There was elegant fighting along the whole line," only he substituted drinking for fighting.

Luce's perambulating boiler factory, after many preliminary symptoms, lay right down and died on him at the New Brunswick border. Finding no relief stations competent to deal with the patient he hastened to the nearest city on foot, and, seeing the British flag flying, demanded a drink. He was almost arrested. That part of Canada was prohibition.

His peregrinations, minus his motor, in search of refreshment, would form an Odyssey, accent on the first syllable, and after each disappointment he would send a telegram to George Hunt, his Boston partner, expressive of annoyance. The latest bulletin came from a train enroute to Montreal.

"Every other place dry. Going to Montreal for a drink."

Meanwhile birds are nesting in the tubercular contraption he abandoned at the Canadian border.

Eileen Is Versatile.

When "Maytime Magic Melody" was playing at the Majestic Theatre a few months ago, Eileen Poe was called in to substitute for Julia Dean, who was taken ill. Miss Dean played a young girl in the first act and the mother of two young men in the remaining spasms.

"I was called upon to take her place," says Miss Poe, "and found myself the mother of two big husky actors, each old enough to be my father."

Miss Poe is in no such dilemma in "The Poor Little Ritz Girl," where she plays a particularly guileless and naive heroine, aetat nineteen.

Trying to Get it all at Once.

Summer parks, road houses and other places where the blast of prohibition is keenly felt are facing the season with considerable trepidation. The absence of liquor inducements and the necessary high cost of food indicates to them that business will not be good.

The facts are that there are more automobiles than ever before, and people still require three meals a day whether they are motoring or patronizing excursion boats. There is unquestionably good profit in food as witness the prosperity of the chains of popular restaurants, but the public is likely to resent exorbitant prices. The road house proprietor who sells a good dinner at a fair price and improves and strengthens his cabaret instead of abandoning it is most likely to attract the big crowds.

People are not entirely fools and most people know that lobsters can be purchased wholesale at this season for about 25 cents each. When they are charged $2.50 for a lobster salad containing half a lobster by a brigand who is trying to add the profit of a bottle of wine to the ordinary profit of a salad they are liable to stay away from that place.

The restaurant business was formerly run as a liquor business with food as an unimportant side line. The hotel or road house man who forgets old times and goes into the food business in an efficient manner will still be able to roll around in his Rolls-Royce.

Hark, the Bridegroom Cometh.

For nine weeks preparations were made before activities started in "The Mollycoddle," in which Douglas Fairbanks will be seen at the Majestic Theatre Monday, during which time the star developed his original ideas into what is believed to be one of the best stories he has ever had to work with.

Tom Geraghty, who was responsible for Doug's last screen adaptation, prepared the scenario again and Victor Fleming, who supervised things from the first day in the making of "When the Clouds Roll By," is again directing, with Ted Reed occupying the front aid to the director.

The same character of high class photography as was witnessed in the last Fairbanks "Big Four" release is promised in "The Mollycoddle." William McGann and Harry Thorpe continuing to perform with the camera.

Excellent reports have been received regarding all of the principals of the company. The supporting cast could hardly be improved upon, it is declared, and this is accounted for because the author-star in preparing the story moulded his characters true to the players he had in mind.

A Skilful Actress

Catherine Curtis is a huge success in Harold Bell Wright's "The Shepherd of the Hills," which is appearing at Tremont Temple. Miss Curtis has buried her own personality in the role of Samaile Lane, the unkempt mountain girl, to such an extent that one would hardly believe that the wild lass of the Ozarks was infinitely more at home in evening gown at the opera, or on a ballroom floor.

The greatest asset which Catherine Curtis has as an actress is her natural ness. A woman of exceptional physical charm, just such a type as is needed to play the part of a super-woman of the Ozarks, she fits perfectly into the role and there is no suggestion at any time that she is anything but the unsophisticated Ozark maiden who wants to be a "sure 'nough lady."

AT THE THEATRES

De Mille's Genius.

Genuineness and absolute realism are two factors in the enormous success which Cecil B. De Mille has attained as a motion picture director. These qualities are present in "Male and Female." Mr. De Mille's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, which was adapted from Sir James Barrie's famous play, "The Admirable Crichton," and will be on view at Norumbega Park the first three days of next week.

The Lure of the Pops

There is no law demanding silence around the tables at the nightly Pop Concerts in Symphony Hall while the great orchestra is playing, not even a tradition, for it was once otherwise. Nor does Conductor Agide Jacchia demand anything unreasonable of his audiences. In fact, it is his way to persuade them, and if in the sheer spell of his musically eventful programme and his infectious enthusiasm and zest which involuntarily stills all tongues.

On Monday, June 14, the New England Conservatory of Music will have their annual night at the Pops. This occasion will also be public, and the program, with the feature of a female chorus of fifty voices, led by Mr. George W. Chadwick, the Conservatory director, will be of especial general interest.

Save for Wednesday, June 16, and Thursday, June 17, when Boston University and the annual convention of the American Institute of Banking, respectively, have engaged Symphony Hall entire, every night of the week will be public.

Claire Likes This Role

"It has often been said that once a girl loses her good reputation she can never hope to rise above the disgrace which hovers over her head," said Claire Whitney, the beautiful film star who will be featured in "Mothers of Men" the closing half of the coming week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre, "but I am happy to have had the honor of playing in a picture that proves this is not true.

"I have always deplored the fact that a girl who had committed an indiscretion, perhaps through her thoughtlessness or a victim of man's perfidy, but none the less out of the pale of society, could not regain her good standing and find happiness in true love and affection.

"In 'Mothers of Men' I have a role that proves the exception to the rule, for though the girl whom I impersonate had been disgraced by the cruelty of a man, following her discharge as a cabaret singer, she enters the home of relatives and finds home ties sweet and finally receives the true love of a real man.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

One of the biggest laugh programs ever presented in this city goes on view at the Majestic Theatre Monday, when Douglas Fairbanks in his latest film production, "The Mollycoddle," and Harold Lloyd in his latest laugh producer, "An Eastern Westerner," said to be the fastest picture ever made, will be shown. Beginning Monday performances will be continuous from 1 to 10.30 p. m.

The new Fairbanks picture is said to outdo everything that this famous star has done before. It was nine months in the making, with Fairbanks on the job every minute, and cost just a little less than half a million dollars to get to the screen.

The picture serves to introduce a new leading woman for Fairbanks—Ruth Renick. In "The Mollycoddle" Wallace Beery, probably the best known villain on the screen, also makes his first appearance in a Fairbanks picture.

"An Eastern Westerner," in which Harold Lloyd will be seen, is a rapid-fire burlesque on the old-fashioned wild west melodrama.

KEITH'S THEATRE

At Keith's next week will be seen George Choos' latest production—"Under the Apple Tree"—which is termed "a delicious spread of the best in girls, gayety and gowns." It is elaborately staged and the costumes are rich and artistic. In the cast are John Gulty, Ethel Rosevere, Carl and Muriel Thomas. The book and lyrics are by Carl MacDoyle and the music by Walter L. Rosemont. It is a bright, refreshing and new kind of musical comedy. Next on the bill comes Vinie Daly, one of the most remarkable members of the famous Daly family. She has an exceptional voice and she won a great triumph in London with Hammerstein's Opera Company. Sam Lewis and Sam Dody will burlesque several popular musical numbers in a manner all their own.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA AND SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA

The unusual and quaint form of plotting is one of the more intensely interesting features of Marshall Neilan's first independent production, "The River's End," from the story by James Oliver Curwood and distributed by First National, which will have its initial showing at popular prices at Gordon's Olympia and the Scollay Square Olympia, beginning Monday.

The roles of both John Keith and Derwent Connlston are portrayed by Lewis Stone, who reaches heights seldom attained in dual-role depiction. He is supported by such popular stars as Marjorie Daw, J. Barney Sherry, Jane Novak, Charles West and Togo Yamamoto.

RINGLING'S CIRCUS

It's coming—the most monumental, spectacular and everything else show on earth—the Ringling Brothers' and Barnum and Bailey colossus combined will inaugurate the Boston season of six days with a street parade next Monday morning, starting from the Huntington Avenue Show Grounds at 9.30.

It is promised that this season's program will surpass that which introduced the circus consolidation to Boston last Spring. All of the notables of the arenic world presented at that time have been retained and to these have been added numerous new acts. A remarkable European rider who styles himself "Phunny Phil, the marvel equestrian comique," will be among the latest novelties. The feminine stare will include Lilly Lietzel, Bird Millman and May Wirth. The Clarksonians, Davenports, Rooneys, Wirths and St. Leon families of famous riders will lead the equestrian numbers. Little Spanghi, a tiny Tuscan horseman; Trilby White, who will perform giant swings on a trapeze fixed high up in the canvas dome, and the Clarksonian and Siegrist-Silbon troupes of aerialists will be among the features. There will be many trained animal acts. Clowns? At the head of them.

A mammoth opening pageant of astounding size and beauty opens the main tent program. Hundreds of characters and scores of beautiful horses are introduced.

TED LEWIS RECORDS.

The first record ever made with Ted Lewis Jazz Band selections on both sides has been released by Columbia this month. On one side is "I'll See You in C-U-B-A," with incidental whistling by Ted Lewis himself, a fox-trot, in which even the trombone sounds thirsty. And "The Moon Shines on the Moon-shine," the fox-trot on the other side, sounds like the logical aftermath of the trip to Cuba, which has not yet gone dry.

Nora Bayes makes everyone want to be a little barefoot boy wearing patches on his pants by the ingratiating way in which she sings "Patches," an appealing boyhood ballad. This selection is coupled with her song "Without You," which this popular comedienne chose for the leading feature of her latest musical comedy, "Ladies First."

When Art Hickman's Orchestra, from the St. Francis Hotel, San Francisco, plays a dance, the public finds it extremely difficult to sit still. "Along the Way to Damascus," and "Rose of Mandalay," two lively Oriental fox-trots, are this orchestra's contribution to Columbia dance records this month.

KATHERINE TINGLEY IN BOSTON

Madame Katherine Tingley, leader and official head of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society throughout the world, with international headquarters at Point Loma, California, is staying at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

Madame Tingley is accompanied by a group of students from her famous Raja Yoga Academy and College in California, who will assist her in her public work in some of the principal cities of the East.

While in Boston Madame Tingley will deliver one or two addresses in the Copley-Plaza Auditorium on education and other subjects. She will be assisted by her Raja Yoga students who will provide vocal and instrumental music. The first of these lectures will be on Sunday next, June 13, at 3.15, doors open at 7.30.

NORUMBEGA PARK

"Male and Female," the big Cecil B. De Mille film production of Sir James Barrie's play, "The Admirable Crichton," will be the feature of the program in the great open air theatre at Norumbega Park the first three days of next week. The feature attraction the last three days of the week will be "Family Honor." Performances are given both afternoon and evening, and there are special musical features, including a soloist and a concert orchestra of twelve sole musicians. Special programs are given both Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening. In addition to the program in the theatre there are the many other popular attractions of the park, including the big 500, fine picnic grounds, unexcelled athletic field and canoeing on the river. Fine meals are obtainable at the restaurant, where dancing is a feature.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

A splendid program has been arranged for the coming week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre, with Harry First being featured the first half of the week in a character comedy drama, "The Good For Nothing," in which there is said to be an abundance of good humor and heavy sayings. Meyers, Burns and O'Brien will offer a triple alliance of harmony, music and mirth. Other acts on the bill include Hoy and Francis in a singing and jesting skit; Robinson and Farquette, two clever colored comedians, in a harmony and jazz number; Monsieur Albert, the novelty shadowgraph artist, and the Jupiter trio in sensational aerial feats. The topline photoplay will offer exquisitely beautiful Wanda Hawley in Jerome K. Jerome's appealing love story, "Miss Hobbs."

TREMONT TEMPLE

"The Shepherd of the Hills," the film edition of Harold Bell Wright's world-renowned novel of the same name, begins its second phenomenal week at Tremont Temple Monday night. The ten-reel feature, with the musical accompaniment written especially for it, forms a delightful evening's entertainment, and one which from all indications is warmly appreciated by local play patrons. Taken in the Ozark Mountains and in California, under the personal direction of the famous author, no expense was spared to make this one of the finest pictures of the decade.

PARK THEATRE

Lavish settings, gorgeous feminine costumes and beautiful scenic backgrounds have come to be accepted ingredients in Cecil B. De Mille's special production, "Old Wives for New," hailed by the critics as one of the greatest of the many great film dramas which he has given to the screen, is no exception to this rule.

The story, founded on David Graham Phillips' famous novel, offers many opportunities for the use of exquisite artistic backgrounds, and Mr. De Mille has made use of these opportunities. A revival of the picture will be shown at the Park Theatre next Monday.

RELAY HOUSE

To dine in comfort where the cool sea breezes blow is the recreation of the epicurean these days, which makes the Relay House, "the inn that made fish famous" at Bass Point, Nahant, a popular resort. Manager Eugene H. Brann, under whose able direction the steak, chicken and fish dinners have become known throughout the whole country, finds that dancing permitted here this year for the first time in history, is proving a popular attraction, while the vocal and instrumental entertainers of Bowles' black and white jazz band have established an enthusiastic clientele.

PEMBERTON INN

Situated at the end of a pleasurable sail down the harbor, and at the end of one of the finest short auto trips out of Greater Boston, Pemberton Inn, with its popular priced dinners, is doing a big business. Dancing, always one of the features of this dining place of the fashionable South Shore, continues to be most popular here. Vocal and instrumental entertainment of rare excellence is provided by the ten all-star Melody Boys.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Douglas Fairbanks in "When the Clouds Roll By" and the Mack Sennett comedy, "Down on the Farm," will be shown at two performances at the Majestic Theatre tomorrow. The first performance will take place at 2 p. m. and the second at 8 p. m. Popular prices will prevail at both performances.

MODERN AND BEACON

Marjorie Rambeau, accepted by the critics as America's leading emotional actress, will be seen in the screen version of her greatest stage success, "The Fortune Teller," a Robertson-Cole super-special, at the Modern and Beacon Theatres, beginning Monday.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

Miss Grace Fox, one of the best known character actresses on the American stage, has been especially engaged by the management of the popular Malden Auditorium to appear in an important part in "On the Hiring Line," a successful comedy announced as the attraction for the coming week at this theatre. Miss Fox has a host of Malden friends, and her appearance during the coming week will no doubt attract unusually large audiences. "On the Hiring Line" deals with the servant problem and the skilful treatment of this up-to-the-minute theme.

NANTASKET BOATS

Eight sturdy steamers comprise the fleet of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, and Frederick L. Lane, general manager, due to the recent hot weather conditions, has put every steamer in commission. Although the season is still early, the public is taking advantage of this cool two-hour sail, and on every trip the steamers are well patronized. On June 16 the steel steamer South Shore with a carrying capacity of over 2,000 persons will start her daily trip to Plymouth.

POPS TONIGHT

At the Pop concert in Symphony Hall tonight Agide Jacchia and his fine Symphony orchestra will present the following program:

March, "Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
Selection, "The Tattered Bride" ..... Eastman
Prelude, "The Deluge" ..... Saint-Saens
Finnish "Karnes" ..... Hill
"Ride of the Huns" from "La Gioconda" ..... Ponchielli
Trio, Trixie ..... Sibelius
Enfantlings (children at play) ..... Van Westervelt
Overture Solonelle, "1812" ..... Tschaikowsky
Rhapsody, "Espana" ..... Chabrier
Mardones
Dance of the Camorrists, from "The Jewels of the Madonna" ..... Wolf Ferrari
Invitation to the Dance ..... Weber-Berlioz

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE

Norma Talmadge has a role which is admirably adapted to bring out the many talents of this popular young film star in "The Woman Divine," which will be the attraction at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre, beginning Monday.

WILBUR THEATRE

Lew Fields's "Poor Little Rita Girl" that musically conducted tour behind the scenes of a lavishly staged musical show where the famous "Hirst chorus holds sway, begins another week at the Wilbur Theatre next Monday.

LANCASTER THEATRE

A photoplay that is remarkable for its unusual character and for the skillful performance of Dorothy Dalton in two vividly contrasted roles will be seen at the Lancaster Theatre for the first three days of the week. It is "The Dark Mirror," and is taken from the novel of the same name.

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE

Beautiful Wanda Hawley will head the program for the initial half of this week at Loew's Globe Theatre, Washington street, near Boylston, in her latest screen release, "Miss Hobbs," a photodramatization of Jerome K. Jerome's delightful love story.

TREMONT THEATRE

There seems to be no withstanding the enticements of "Mary" at the Tremont Theatre, all counter diversions and obstructions failing to detract from the charms of this Geo. M. Cohan musical comedy attraction.

BOSTON THEATRE

At the Boston Theatre next week the eminent American actor Earle Williams will be seen for the first time in the great photo-play, "A Master Stroke," by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND

Rachel Crothers' celebrated stage play, "Old Lady 31," as adapted to the screen by Metro, with Emma Dunn as the star, will be one of the feature attractions at the Upham's Corner Strand, for a run of three days, beginning Monday.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATRE

Anita Stewart shines forth as the star to be seen on Monday at Loew's Columbia Theatre, in the great photo-drama, "Sins of the Mothers," in addition to the showing of Buck Jones, the celebrated William Fox cowboy star.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE

The inauguration of the Summer policy of the popular Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, will take place during the coming week, when the management will offer two big photo-play specials each half of the week, in addition to the regular pictorial news, new somedy and photoplay supplement.

CHAPTER XXII.

BARBARA PAIGE slept well that night. Youth demands sleep; pain or sorrow must be very keen to banish it from a healthy girl's eyes.

Moreover the emotional strain of the past two days had wearied Barbara. She had believed herself too unhappy to rest. Therefore she uttered an ejaculation of surprise as her aunt's voice awoke her to the consciousness that the night was gone and that it was past her usual rising hour.

"Barbara!" Miss Cynthia was calling. "I am on my way downstairs. Aren't you up yet?"

"No—I must have overslept" Barbara exclaimed.

"Never mind if you did," Cynthia reassured her, coming into the room. "You may have to be up late tonight, you know—for this is the day of the picnic."

"So it is!" Barbara rejoined, now wide awake. "And the sun is shining beautifully, too—so we will have clear weather this evening—won't we?"

"Yes, indeed—bright moonlight. Hurry up and dress, child."

Then the spinster left the room without noting that her mention of of the moonlight had brought a shadow to her niece's face. Moonlight again! And Robert—

Barbara dressed quickly, her mind on the subject that seemed just now the biggest part of her world. Robert, who she had believed loved her—yet had not told her of his appointment with Mary ——

But she would not judge him until she heard from him. He had promised to wire to her as soon as he reached his rooms in town. She remembered just what he had said.

"I shall write to you tomorrow night. I could not rest unless I did. And then I will add a line to the letter the next morning and mail it on my way down to the office. So you will receive it Monday night or Tuesday morning at the very latest. And you will answer it that very day, I hope."

No Mail for Her

These were his words before he parted from her on the veranda on Saturday night. She recalled exactly how his face had looked in the moonlight. And he had repeated the promise on the postcard mailed from the Grand Central Station when he reached New York on Sunday.

If he had meant it—if he were really to be trusted—there would be a letter for her by the first mail this morning. She had looked for it last night but it had not come. That might have been due to some delay in the mails—but it must be here now.

The thought made her hands tremble as she fastened her collar, then hurried down to breakfast.

But, although her uncle had some opened letters lying on the table, there was no mail at her plate.

As if detecting the disappointment, whose expression Barbara tried to suppress, her aunt spoke.

"Sit down, my dear. No mail for you, you see. I had none either, but then I expected none."

The remark seemed too innocent for the girl to resent the suggestion that she had expected mail and had been disappointed. If her aunt thought she was capable of the non-arrival of a letter from Robert Elliot, she would prove that she was mistaken.

"Well," she said lightly, "there is one comfort in not getting letters—one does not have to answer them. And I have enough in the office to escape letter writing. I do not enjoy it."

But her aunt observed with apparent guilelessness, "There are occasions on which one enjoys writing. Or, rather, there are people to whom one wishes to write regularly. Later, my dear, you may understand that.

"And that reminds me—we must get down from the attic the luncheon hamper for the sandwiches and cake we are going to take tonight. Arthur, it would be nice if you would buy a larger bottle than the two we now have. I want to take a-plenty of lemonade and some iced coffee, too."

"But auntie," Barbara protested, "you must not feel that you have to take so much! You are doing more than your share."

Her aunt leaned over and patted the speaker's hand.

"Don't worry about that, dear," she advised. "This is to be a bigger picnic than you have been on before. And I want my little girl to feel that she is doing as much toward the success of the affair as is any one else."

"You are awfully kind, auntie,' Barbara faltered, quite overcome by this unwonted generosity and display of affection. "but it is too bad to have uncle get another bottle for just this time."

Arthur Paige had finished his breakfast and, coming around to his niece's chair, kissed her.

A Letter Burned

"Your old uncle is only too willing to do anything to help make tonight's affair a success, honey," he remarked. "Your happiness is one of the things I have been living for for years, you know."

Tears of gratitude prevented the girl's reply, but the man pretended not to see them. When he went from the room his sister followed his example, leaving Barbara alone.

Della was not in the kitchen when Miss Cynthia entered. Crossing the room swiftly, the mistress of the house removed one of the lids of the stove, and, drawing an unopened letter from her pocket, laid it in the centre of the glowing bed of coals. Then she replaced the lid.

"I would not read it," she told herself complacently. "But I am burning it, just as I would destroy any other thing that threatened to ruin the child's happiness and her entire future!"

Household Suggestions

To clean front doors, take a clean piece of flannel and dip it in a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of turpentine and one tablespoonful of sweet oil. Rub all the finger marks and other dirty spots with this and they will quickly disappear. This does not injure the paint. Finish by rubbing the paint with a clean piece of flannel.

* * *

To fill up cracks in woodwork, make a paste by boling six ounces of flour in a quart of water. Add a little alum. Remove several old newspapers in this until the whole is of the consistency of putty. This can be pressed into the cracks with a blunt knife. When dry it is quite hard, and may be painted to match the woodwork.

New glassware should never be used until it has been treated so that it is rendered tough. To do this place it in a large pan, pack round well with hay and then fill up the pan with cold water. Bring to the boiling point very slowly, then turn out the gas and leave until cold before removing the glass.

Cold-water starch, after being used, may be used again. Allow the starch to settle, pour off the water, and place the starch in the other non-arrival of a letter from Robert Elliot, she would prove that she was mistaken.

Pride Nothing But Conceit

By Beatrice Fairfax

"PRIDE. Unreasonable conceit as to one's own superiority, whether as to talent, wealth, beauty, accomplishments, rank, office or other distinction, with correspondingly contemptuous feeling toward others."

That's what the dictionary says "pride" is. And yet there are full many of us, I don't doubt, who are like the young lady in the verse who was "Proud of her pride and proud of a thousand matters beside."

Now, saying that you're proud is one thing—it can be carried off with a certain dash and swagger. It sounds rather well—like a humble confession of a very aristocratic fault. But to confess that you're unreasonably conceited would be "something else again," would it not?

The dictionary has such an astonishing way of tearing up matters which have a tendency to be vague. Who wants to acknowledge conceit, and "unreasonable" conceit to boot?

Who wants to announce pharisaically that he is contemptuous of others? To be unafraid of competition might be all very well, but probably how pride would define its attitude toward its neighbors. But just fancy yourself expressing yourself calmly and fatuously after this wise:

"Conceited and Satisfied."

"I am really very conceited and self-satisfied. I'm actually unreasonable about it and can't be argued with or convinced. I just think I'm a little bit of a sight, and I actually despise every one else. My contempt for other folks is based on my feeling that I'm secure in beauty and brains and position. I'm the whole show."

Sounds like a comedian trying for laughs, doesn't it? And yet, I wonder—how much more sensible is that thing commonly regarded as pride—that aversion to the unworthy, which comes far down on the dictionary list of definitions, but which we dramatically fancy we mean when we claim to be proud.

One of the men whose safe and sane and jovial wisdom I like to quote said to me recently:

"Pride's one of the best ushers to the poorhouse gates."

Then he told me the story of a man who wasn't proud. This man was the head of a large manufactory of household goods. A trust came along and swept it in its wake. At sixty, Hollins (we'll call him that because it isn't his name) found himself dead broke and with several dependents. He had a gift for salting almonds. And in his own kitchen he began salting almonds and peanuts. Then he actually peddled among the men he'd known as pals in better days.

Braving Misfortune

He got influential friends to ask for his goods in the little stand located in a certain building. A clientele was gradually built up—but before that day came, the former president of a large company was a familiar figure as he made his way peddler-wise through the big office buildings down in the financial district.

Pride would have made that man a beggar—a sad end for pride. But the courage and strength and wisdom to conquer false pride set him again on the road to success.

In love as well as in business, pride is a definite factor in defeat. I knew a girl who quarrelled with the man for whom she cared because he offended in that way, forcing the first fox-trot with someone else at a party one night. She thought she had been offended, though she owed it to her pride to hold her head high and show she wouldn't put up with such cavalier treatment. And the next step was to refuse to dance with the man with whom she'd gladly have trotted life's measure.

"Let him dance with me when he got good and ready?" she indignantly demanded. "I guess not. I have some pride."

So had he. He wasn't the sort to forgive a girl for publicly offending it.

She had pride and got a broken heart to boot. How about pride—isn't it a little too expensive?

Goggles for Gorillas

"Apes are frequently short-sighted, and require spectacles as much as human beings do."

The above is the opinion of a professor who has made a life study of these animals. After all, since man is heir to all the ills of flesh, why, not animals also?

As a matter of fact, short-sightedness is apparently quite common among monkeys. On examination of twenty-five, picked out haphazard, eighteen were found to be suffering from myopia (short-sight), and in their efforts to observe certain objects placed in a darkened room for the purpose, behaved in a similar manner to a man or woman suffering from bad sight. They grasped the articles in their paws and held them first at arm's length, then brought them close to the eyes to obtain a better view.

The more apparent diseases among animals find speedy and expert attention by special doctors; yet it is quite probable many of our household favorites suffer in much the same way that we do, yet are unable to give outward expression to their ills.

Where Ignorance Is Bliss Indeed, I Will Fly on the Wings of Love

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1920, by International Feature Service, Inc.

BABETTE, who peruses our famous wholesome, mild, tolerant talks to girls, and then goes straight cut and decides to wear a three-tiered taffeta bustle—that bobby affair being the fashion, "fenders" on her "fesh," a frock with the back gone along with other things that go and leave no trace behind whatever—and held high in the front with a martingale of beads, has her soft eye on the Mercury mode, which is "Wings on Your Feet!" Also an absent-minded eye on Monsieur Dan, with his innocent and trusting back turned. To be exact, right on his wings. For are they not tiny things? Are they not miniatures—dainty, white, silken wings with a fainting, tender flush of dawn-pink at their tips—cherub wings—WINGS OF LOVE! Are they not just the size and shape to fit against the velvet side of Babette's little Shetland-pony shoes?

But also I desire you to take note—Babette, with all her eyes, is ignorant also. If Dan knows not of the amazing scheme turning over in her head, or of the scissors in her curling fingers, neither does she know that the shaping of a new arrow of gold is all for her sake.

Love and Woman are true "friendly enemies"—always. When they are together they design plots against one another, and when they are apart they cannot be comforted.

An At-Home Italian Dinner

By Loretto C. Lynch

"THERE was a time when you could go out to a restaurant and have a nice little table d'hote dinner for seventy-five cents or a dollar," sighed little Mrs. Newbride, "but I declare it has gotten beyond us now—this dining out has—and we do miss the spaghetti and all the other good things that went with the Italian dinner we used to get at Nari's, for instance," she said in conclusion.

"Why not try my stunt?" suggested Mrs. Mayer. "I get an Italian restaurant dinner at home occasionally that Frank declares is unsurpassed. Only last week he brought his employer and his wife home, and unless he honestly thought well of my 'restaurant dinners' he would not have asked such important company."

The dinner was for six. Where a larger number are served the cost to serve each will be smaller. The dinner Mrs. Mayer served would cost ten to twelve dollars plus the tip to the waiter at the restaurant. Prices differ in different localities, but one does not have to be an expert calculator to note there is a decided saving when one is able to prepare this dinner at home.

First, decide on the menu. Then plan the market list. The better Italian restaurants in the large American cities have a menu which reads about as follows:

DINNER.

Minestrone Soup. Bread Sticks.
Filet of Sole. Sauce Tartare.
Potatoes. Spaghetti.
Broiled Spring Chicken.
Salad au Saison.
Ice Cream. Coffee.

Appetizers consisted of thinly sliced salami, small sardines, olives, canned pimentos, and sometimes there was an anchovy or two. Sometimes, a few hot-house radishes found there way to the appetizer plate. Quantities vary, a quarter of a pound of salami sausage would be enough for six servings. Three or four olives and one or two radishes would be sufficient for one serving. Arrange an assortment of the appetizers on individual dishes to be placed before the guests are seated.

Minestrone soup, if it is made as Italians make it, is delicious. Put two cupfuls of shredded or chopped cabbage into a cook pot. Add two level teaspoons of salt, one onion finely chopped and a cup of carrots cut into pieces about two inches in length and about as thick as a lead pencil. Pour on three quarts of cold water. Cook slowly for thirty minutes and then add one cup potato cubes that have been delicately browned in a little salt pork fat. When all the vegetables are tender, add one-fourth cup of grated Parmesan cheese. This cheese may be purchased, grated and ready for use, in small quantities in glass bottles at any high class grocery shop.

Spaghetti or Ineef is a very tasteless foodstuff, and so the cook who would have her spaghetti famous needs must provide a tasty sauce. The better restaurants seem to prefer to serve spaghetti in which is just a spaghetti very small in diameter. Italians never cook spaghetti until it is very, very soft, but prefer to serve it rather stiff and a bit underdone. Rinse it in cold water after it has been cooked in plenty of boiling salted water. Reheat it in the oven or over steam.

There are a large variety of sauces made to serve with it, but none is much better than this one which an Italian chef gave me.

TOMATO SAUCE ITALIENNE.

Provide half a dozen mushrooms. These may be fresh, canned or dried. Dried mushrooms must be soaked in cold water for several hours before using. Saute the mushrooms broken into pieces, an onion and a clove of garlic, cut fine, in half a cup of olive oil until a golden brown. Then add one-fourth cup of water and one-half cup tomato pulp, simmer for five minutes and then stir in two teaspoons of beef extract. Strain before serving. One-fourth cup of strong beef stock may be used instead of the beef extract and water.

To make the dressing for the salad, rub the inside of the mixing bowl with a clove of garlic. Allow one tablespoon of oil and one teaspoon of strong vinegar for each salad, season and blend thoroughly with a silver fork.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

IF a maid's on a hunt for a popular stunt, I believe I can give her a tip; she will make a big noise with the most of the boys if she daily goes in for a dip. You may laugh all you please, but you'll see the big cheese who captures all hearts with a dash may not know how to talk strolling down the boardwalk but she takes to the surf with a splash. There are maidens quite sure, there are maidens demure, who may have stacks of beaux for a time; but the girlie who wins is the girlie with fins, for the fellows all think she is prime. Some girls sit on the rocks in their smart summer frocks and assert that the view is just great; but inside they say: "My, I should like to know why I haven't the ghost of a date!" Some girls cut their hair and some learn how to swear and they cause their poor mamma to fret as she sees her dear child trying hard to be wild and consuming a whole cigarette! But this just sets them back, they are on the wrong tack, and if oodles of suitors they wish, they should frolic and play in the waves every day just how they were built like a fish. Here's the tip they should take: "Go and live in a lake, if you really are seeking a him, for the girl who gets by when the Summer draws nigh is the girlie who knows how to swim!"

Private Wars

Of the many privileges conferred on the nobles of Europe by the feudal system, none was more jealously guarded or more frequently exercised than the right of waging private war. This abuse was carried to so great an extent that not only sovereigns and States engaged in hostilities from interest or revenge, but the lesser barons and even associations of tradesmen and domestics, sent defiances to each other, in the most ridiculous pretences, and in a manner scarcely credible at the present day. We find a declaration of war from a private individual, Henry Mayenberg, against the Emperor; another from the Lord Frauenstein against Frankfort, because a young lady of the city refused to dance with his uncle; another in 1462 from the baker of the Count Palatine Louis against the cities of Auburgh, Ulm and Rothwell, and one in 1477 from a cook of Eppenstein, with his scullions dairymaids and dishwashers against Otho, Count of Bolena.

Convicts' Favorite Book

"Monte Cristo," says Mr. Maurice Haring, "is the only book which for me has ever annihilated time, space, and place, and everything else," and with "Monte Cristo" he counts Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" for its "riveting power." Mr. Basil Thomson says it is a favorite book of the convicts in Dartmoor Prison. They call it "Less Miserables." It is a favorite book among the Russian peasants also, among those who read and write. So is, as a matter of fact, "Monte Cristo." Most literary critics say the latter part of "Monte Cristo" is a pity. "Not so the Russian peasant, and not I," adds Mr Haring. "The proof is in the reading. Whoever heard of anybody not finishing 'Monte Cristo,' and stopping half-way bored?"

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

O'Neil

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

O'NEIL

VARIATIONS—O'Neill, McNeil (e), MacNeill (e).
RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish.
SOURCE—A given name.

THIS is one of the oldest family names on record, coming as it does from a land in which the development of family names preceded that in the rest of northern Europe, and being traceable to an origin in an individual person at a very early period.

Family names did not begin to develop in England until slightly before the time of the Norman invasion, and did not develop generally until two or three centuries later. Indeed, as late as the sixteenth century there was a considerable portion of the population of England which had adopted no definite system of family names.

But the name of O'Neill was a family name, or clan name, which is pretty much the same thing, as far back as the fifth century; in the period when the light of Roman civilization and historical record was quenched in the barbarian invasions, but through which Christianity survived, and strangely enough spread like wildfire through Ireland, though cut off from its source by the pagan invasions of northern France and England.

Nial, of the Nine Hostages, was the chieftain who welcomed St. Patrick when he first set foot on Irish soil. His fame as a warrior would have been sufficient to perpetuate his name as the family property of his followers and descendants, but his further historical fame from this incident made assurance doubly sure.

Many Scottish-Americans bear the name MacNeille, but it must be remembered that Christianity spread first to the north of England and Scotland from Ireland.

The earliest O'Neill in America was one James, who came alone to Philadelphia in 1701 from Croquikills, Ireland. He started as a day laborer in the great stone quarries near the city, and by thrifty living he amassed enough money to become the owner and developer of large tracts in different parts of the State.

He left an enormous fortune to his children, who all settled in Philadelphia and its vicinity.

Other records of the family are as far north as Rockland, Maine. There were O'Neills along the coast in 1734 engaged in fishing and shipping, and probably a Henry O'Neill, who fought bravely in the Revolution and attained the rank of a major.

Anecdotes of the Famous

It is recorded that at an entertainment at which Gainsborough and the famous actor, David Garrick, were present an ardent admirer of the great artist declared that Gainsborough never had failed to take a person's likeness in a portrait, no matter how difficult the subject might be. Garrick thereupon asserted that Gainsborough could not paint his likeness and begged to be allowed to sit for his portrait. Gainsborough, pleased at the commission and expecting to find it very interesting to paint the actor's expressive countenance, gladly consented. Garrick then made a secret wager with the artist's friends that he could prove to them that there was one face at least that Gainsborough could not paint.

The results of the first sitting were very satisfactory to the complacent artist. At the second sitting, however, Gainsborough was made uncomfortable and nervous at finding it necessary to make several alterations in his work. At the third sitting his displeasure became extreme. In working on correcting the half-completed work with Garrick's face, he saw that the two bore so little resemblance to each other that little remained to be done but to repaint. When Garrick appeared for the fourth time, with the most innocent expression imaginable, and begged the painter to begin work, Gainsborough, thoroughly angry, broke out:

"I've no use for you! You can spe thousands of faces and never have one of your own!"

Garrick left the studio smiling, to announce to the artist's friends that he had won the wager.

"The greatest fun," he said, "were asked to drink from an old pussie goblet. It was a stag's horn holding about three-quarters of a bottle of wine, so constructed that one could not bring it close to the lips, and it was a tricky matter to drink from it at all without spilling any. I emptied it at a draught, though it was filled with very cold champagne, and not a single drop fell on my waistcoat. Everybody was immensely surprised, but I said,

"Fill it again!" Evidently the King did not appreciate my success, for he called out, 'No, no more!' Such tricks were formerly an indispensable part of the diplomat's trade. They made the weaker ones intoxicated, wormed all they wanted to know out of them, and made them agree to things which were contrary to their instructions or for which they had no authority. Then they were induced to put their signatures at once, and when they got sober they could not imagine why they had done so."

Prince Bismarck used to relate an incident which happened when he was staying with Frederick William the Fourth at Lotalingen.

"The guests," he said, "were asked to drink from an old pussie goblet. It was a stag's horn holding about three-quarters of a bottle of wine, so constructed that one could not bring it close to the lips, and it was a tricky matter to drink from it at all without spilling any. I emptied it at a draught, though it was filled with very cold champagne, and not a single drop fell on my waistcoat. Everybody was immensely surprised, but I said,

CLEANED THE POISONS FROM THE SYSTEM

A MASSACHUSETTS MAN GRATEFUL

Somerville, Mass. A well-liked citizen of this city, who has suffered in the past, writes the following to F. P. Tree & Co.:

"I have taken all kinds of laxatives, but none of it cleaned the poison from my system as your Elixir—will know what to use hereafter, considering the effects it had on me as I feel splendid now—all my system needed was a good cleaning and only one Elixir and no other physic. I have taken nearly passed through my body."

Dr. Tree's Elixir has relieved thousands of sufferers during the last 50 years. Imagine a constipation actually lasting so long—doctors gone and despaired of—but Dr. Tree's Elixir, the Family Laxative, would be found in four days. It gives you a good appetite, and is one of the best friends the body can find in your medicine closet.

Symptoms of worms, constipation, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional griping and pains about the navel, with a feeling of nervousness, as if you had something crawling, itching of the anus, soiling of the linen, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

No Harmful Drugs Recommended by Physicians. AT ALL DEALERS. Dr. J. F. Tree & Co., Auburn, Me.

"A Mother's Letter"

"A few years ago I weighed less than one hundred pounds. I took Father John's Medicine faithfully for a little over two years and now weigh one hundred and forty pounds, and do not recall that I have been at well in my lifetime. I attribute it all to Father John's Medicine."

This statement is given voluntarily for the benefit it may be to others. The name and address will be given on request.

For a period of over 60 years Father John's Medicine has been building up an army of word-of-mouth advertisers who tell their friends of the benefits received from this old fashioned, pure and wholesome food medicine. For over 60 years it has proved its value as a safe family medicine. Guaranteed free from alcohol.

Mexico in Revolution

Vincente Blasco Ibanez

III. MEXICO'S SORROW (CONTINUED).

In addition, there was robbery under private management, with all the mystery and intrigue familiar in the detective story and the movie-drama. Especially notorious and terrifying was the "Band of the Gray Car."

A well-to-do family, venturing to leave home for an evening call, on returning would find the house open, all the trunks and safe forced, every dresser turned topsy-turvy, and the servants bound and gagged. On a table would be a note: "Do not report to the police. Silence is golden. Truly yours, The Band of the Gray Car." That would be the end of the matter. People would talk, of course, but in secret, with their friends. This band dealt particularly with the homes of wealthy exiles, where such operations could be conducted with virtual impunity. Any passer-by, seeing the formidable vehicle parked in front of a house, would do his best to get as far away as possible and as soon as possible.

There was good reason for fearing the terrible car. Its joy-riders, though ordinary bandits themselves, proved to be all-powerful. The active leader of the band, according to common report, was a young general, with a suspicious record and notorious morals, who kept a number of actresses supplied with jewelry. According to the same gossip, the "man-higher-up" in the whole business—and at this point one seems to enter fairy-land—was no less than General Pablo Gonzales, at the time dictator-governor of Mexico City and district.

MYSTERY NEVER SOLVED.

I repeat that the story is hard to swallow, and I refuse to believe it. But for many people Don Pablo remains "the man of the gray car." During the recent election campaign, his political enemies put a film on the screens on every circuit in the Republic. It was a detective story dealing with the gray car outrages. The purpose of the film was divined by everybody. It aimed to keep the memory of certain doings fresh in the public mind.

The real truth is that the mystery has never been solved. When Don Pablo had given up the office of police dictator, Carranza started out to satisfy the public demand for a clean-up. He succeeded in catching the Gray Car and all its occupants red-handed. But the men corralled were mere tools, nothing more, common burglars hired to do a certain job.

"They are bound to squeal," people thought, in the expectation of sensational revelations. "They will denounce the men higher up to save their own skins." But the thieves died, one by one, in prison before the cases came to trial. Some were murdered outright. Others "died suddenly." But not one of them talked.

ZAPATISTAS SLA VDERED.

Danger to life was, for some years, much more dangerous to residents in Mexico than danger to property.

The Zapatistas are the most slandered of all the numerous political groups in that much divided country. In reality Zapata's followers were the only sincere revolutionaries. They formed a sect rather than a party, and Zapata was a prophet whom they obeyed fanatically. "Land for everybody!" That was his slogan. His men were barbarians, something like the Huns. They would fall upon Mexico City much as the barbarian invaders used to sweep down upon Rome. But they were honest men. No one in my hearing ever accused Zapata or any of his followers of getting rich off their raids. They smashed everything they could lay hands on, but they never carried any of the plunder away in their pockets.

Among these unselfish vandals of the Revolution, we must reckon Villa, too. People who called themselves important many a time had to go and pay homage to this chieftian, or justify their manner of living before him in that famous Pullman-car, which was his regular domicile, and which is, to the history of contemporary Mexico, what Attila's tent was to the lawn of the Middle Ages.

TAKES FLING AT COALITIONERS

Edward F. McSweeney Answers Eliot, Murlin and Storey on Irish Issue

A reply to the recent attack made by the Loyal Coalitioners on the Friends of Irish Freedom for their advocacy of the recognition of the Irish Republic is contained in an article prepared by Edward F. McSweeney, who takes issue with the reported utterance of President Murlin of Boston University and Charles W. Eliot regarding Ireland.

"The Tory near-Americans, the Loyal Coalitioners and the various brands of pro-Britishers, who temporarily, at least, seem to have forgotten their Americanism in their anxiety to undo the work of the American Revolution, have a favorite argument to throw at any person who dares to defend the rights of a people to be free, whether in Egypt, India or China, and most especially when the subject nation in question is Ireland. The chorus of this argument always goes: 'Why don't you go back there if you are so much interested in it?'

NO NEED TO WORRY.

"While logic on any subject is one quality most conspicuous by its absence in the mind of a bigot, if even a glimmer remains, it must occur to those making this statement, that carried to its logical conclusion it must equally be applied to all those advocating the principle of self-determination for subject races. If Dr. Murlin, president of Boston University, Surely he is too valuable a man to lose in this way. It would similarly apply to Ex-President Eliot to the Near East—and most distressing of all, send that long-distance defender of Negro rights, the Hon. Moorfield Story, to the Philippines at the other side of the world, he being the most distinguished advocate of Philippine independence in this country.

"However, our friends must not worry unduly about the Irish. History has shown that during 145 years they have been fortunate in being permitted on numerous occasions to help nations win the freedom and maintain the liberty of the United States. They love the country and are determined to stick around to be on the job when the country needs them again.

WENDELL PHILLIPS' REPLY.

"To relieve any embarrassment confronting Drs. Eliot and Murlin, Mr. Storey and their worthy associates in various causes of human freedom—most far off, and none of them for freedom of victims of British rule, it may be helpful to tell the following story, which may be used as occasion demands, even by the Irish.

"As the story goes, in an anti-slavery days a minister boarded a street car and while standing on the platform was informed by the conductor that Wendell Phillips was sitting inside. The excitement of that period encouraged the minister to approach Mr. Phillips and engage him in conversation.

"The minister asked, 'Why do you remain in the North agitating this section of the country, about an evil that exists in the South? Why don't you go there?' Mr. Phillips replied: 'You're a minister of the Gospel. Your business is to save souls from Hell. Why don't you go there?'"

MME. VINELLO-JOHNSON'S PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

The annual operatic recital by the pupils of Mme. Vinello-Johnson occurred last night at the Copley-Plaza ballroom. The beautiful auditorium was well filled by the pupils and their friends and an orchestra of Symphony players, led by F. L. Ewell, performed.

The program included air from Jeanette d'Arc, sung by Hilda Remmlet; air from Louise, sung by Ida Goldberg; air from "Tosca," sung by Pauline Klutchell; air from Forgadel Destino, Deborah Berry; air from Carmen, Zara Whitman; air from Traviata, Flora Shain; "Dance of the House" played by the orchestra.

After the concert, which was much appreciated, dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

MILFORD VETERAN TO RUN FOR LEGISLATURE

Milford, June 12.—Captain Elbert M. Crockett, commander of Sergeant J. W. Powers Post, American Legion, has announced his candidacy for representative from the Ninth Worcester District and will seek a Republican nomination at the primaries. He thus succeeds Representative C. W. Gould, who retires for one year to seek a seat in the Senate.

DESERTION CHARGED BY BRIDE OF ONE YEAR

Mrs. Mildred E. T. Hadley of Everett has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, Waldo E. Hadley, of Medford. They were married in Everett September 30, 1903. She alleges desertion on July 19, 1914.

Stocks Irregular in New York and Boston; Trading of Small Volume

LOCAL TRADING VERY SLACK

Prices Irregular During Stagnant Boston Exchange Session; Curb Market Firm

Price changes were few and small on the average when the Boston market started, and it was very quiet during the morning. A large proportion of the advances shown on the tape were unchanged, not only at the start but also late in the session. Attendance at brokerage offices was meagre and local speculators devoted attention and talk to the balloting at the Chicago convention. Island Creek sold at its highest on the year today on the first transaction. New England Telephone advanced a point on one sale. Point on the loses to befell Boston & Maine and Wolverine. Trading was stagnant most of the time.

Among issues to make fractional gains were Island Creek, Elder-Mc-Hawk, Eastern Manufacturing, Libby, Swift & Co., Swift International and American Sugar preferred.

Steels to show small losses included American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, North Butte, Atlas Tack and American Woolen preferred.

CURB MARKET WAS FIRM.

The Curb market had a firm tone at the start, the active issues showing strong stocks advancing. Among early gains were Shattuck Trust 5 cents, Utah Consolidated Mexican 12½, Black Hawk 5 cents at 65 cents and Arizona Tip Top 1 cent at 9 cents. Arizona Silver Belle was weak, receding 11 cents to 43 cents.

WALL ST. PRICES ARE HIGHER

BY BROADAN WALL

Registered Cable Service.

New York, June 15.—Higher prices were seen in Wall Street yesterday for most industrials and even the rails perked up a bit. The genius of Republican strategy that erected favorite candidates in Chicago were duplicated on the ticket in the shape of higher prices.

Foreign exchange was strong again and money got up to 10 per cent.

Announcement was made early of the quashing of the indictment charging President Wood of the American Woolen Co. and Colonel Sterling. American Wool immediately advanced This action by the courts is of importance to the stake to the Woolen Co., but to every other industry. It seems that the country is aimed at profiteering in the finished products.

Small Sugar Crop in Java

Not only will the Cuban crop of sugar be less than the early forecast, but the yield in Java is likely to be below expectations. The weather on the island has been unfavorable. Willett & Gray have reduced their estimate from 1,750,000 to 1,600,000 tons.

Money High in Canada

That money is scarce in Canada is indicated by rates in Western cities. A Winnipeg dispatch says all large corporations are paying 9 per cent and I are being renewed through the West at not less than 8½ per cent. Call money is known in the pioneer days. The general increase is 2 per cent. to 3 per cent.

Steel Production Increased

Steel production in this country increased 2½ per cent. according to figures by the thirty corporations making nearly 85 per cent. of the output. The increase was from 2,583,164 gross tons, against 2,638,-586, in April, 1920, and 1,928,024 in May, 1919.

Flour and Grain

Flour receipts were 2340 barrels. Prices were unchanged.

Butter receipts were 409,341 pounds. Jobbing prices were as follows:

Spring patents at $14.50 to $15.50 for standard and $15.50 to $16.50 for fancy. Hard Winter patents at $14 to $15.50, self straights at $13.50 to $14.50, first clears at $12.50 to $13.50, second clears at $11.50 to $12.50. Spring clears at $10.75 to $12.50, extra clears at $10 to $12.50.

Corporation Earnings

American Beach Magnesite Company earnings after taxes in first five months of 1920 were $629,554, against $975,669 in the whole of 1919. The Texas Pipe Line Company reports net earnings after charges and Federal taxes $5,000 in May, $75,000 in April, $70,000 in March, $75,000 in February and $75,000 in January.

Business Halts to Watch Political Conventions

Both speculation and business halted during the week to await the result of the national convention held by Republicans at Chicago. There has seldom if ever been a gathering of its kind attended by so many leaders in industry, trade and finance. Some of the best known stock market operators were also close hand observers of the struggle for a Presidential nomination. It is conceded by all that the 1920 election will be momentous in its bearing upon business for years to come.

The week which is closing was distinguished by a slump in the price of silver, by reports that commodity price deflation is being accelerated and by shutdowns or the adoption of a short-time schedule by many manufacturing plants. The money situation did not alter to any extent. A relaxation of tension is hoped for after tax payments and government interest disbursements on June 15.

Opinions on various subjects follow:

Campaigns Cause Trade Uncertainty

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York in a statement to the Boston American says the meeting of the Republican National Convention in Chicago this week and the coming meeting of a similar gathering of Democrats in San Francisco, with their respective declarations and promises, cannot but affect the course of business in this country and the world in general from destruction will probably be a factor of large importance to the harbingers of a quadrennial period of uncertainty and depression. He would go forward with what philosophy he can to the weeks of red fire and the speed of rhetoric, the light ahead and prepare himself for the usual great sigh of relief that will go all over and he can get back to work.

"In this combination of circumstances," this bank states, "there is to be found, however, a not unpleasant prospect. Broadly, this gives to the advantage of having a great many difficulties straightened out at the same time. Specifically, it is a fact that a great deal of readjustment is going on in all phases of this nation's economic life and it is quite possible that the process of getting which a normal state may be attained will be aided rather than retarded by the usual accompaniments of a Presidential campaign. If there is uncertainty with respect to new undertakings, if the keen edge of enterprise is somewhat dulled by misapprehension as to the result of the contest, let it be remembered that such warfares, such cooling caution, are the very things which the best guides of affairs are forecasting as the cure for our economic ills.

THINGS NOT IN ORDER.

"Those whose chief concern is with the economic and business aspects of the country's growth are now proposing as remedies the very things which, in ordinary times we look upon as the unwholesome effects of our curious political upheaval. If new capital investments are not in order now, then the American governmental policies of the next four years are undermined, and the going to pay in order at a time when rigid economy must be observed in order to retrench the credit structure of the nation.

"If discontent in the ranks of labor, due indirectly to the agitation which a political campaign communicates to all branches of industry, usually features a Presidential contest, then it cannot be so much more harmful to an inherently healthy country with vast powers of recuperation because it is now due to other causes not connected with politics. The world the economic disturbances of the next few months are not concurrent matters but consecutive.

PROGRESS BEING MADE.

"Meanwhile, the processes of recovery inaugurated on the basis of a study of economic problems will certainly tend to neutralize the effects of the political contest. They are already operating. Business and finance are readjusting themselves to the requirements of the moment. Progress is being made toward a relief of railroad congestion. There are indications that credit will be available in sufficient if not generous amount for the moving of the crops. The putting of the railroads, industries and foodstuffs are following the course of clothing and shoes. Producers of all sorts are making arrangements to meet the discriminating demand of buyers.

"The falling off both the cotton and wheat crops is calculated to restrain the full development of the agricultural interests. The steady shifting of the burden of basic industries to the higher-paying luxury enterprises is likely to be accelerated rather abruptly when the products of the basic industries which they feel take on the character of luxuries. And so it goes around the whole circle of production and consumption, with the impression gaining at each turn that a better understanding of what is really essential to prosperity is always in sight."

Slump in Silver Due to Speculators

James J. Phelan, a director in the U. S. Smelting, Refining & Mining Company, is quoted as saying to the Boston American that the drop in the price of silver is due to a cessation of demand in Japan, China and India, owing to adverse financial conditions in those countries and to a hedging purchase. As American production last year was only 55,235,000 ounces and the United States Government under the Pittman act to buy more than 207,000,000 ounces of silver, there is an outlet for all this country will produce at a dollar an ounce.

Realizing conditions, Mr. Phelan says that the English speculator jumped on the silver market and marked quotations as low as possible, resulting in the selling of some speculative holdings in Europe.

As those speculative holdings are known to be very limited," Mr. Phelan states, "actual dealings in silver at prevailing prices are already small. Present conditions therefore would appear, and are believed to be but temporary, and the market should within a reasonably short time work back to $1 an ounce. This is certainly the case as regards American produced silver, and it is probable that it will, eventually, on the basis of present production this would take several years."

The pity of the thing is that the producer has no control of production, being so largely American, the market should be left to the whims and speculative satisfaction of the English speculator, in this respect it is time for the American producers and owners of silver mines to wake up and demand a more control of the market for their goods in the same way that the copper producers have controlled the foreign market under the Webb act."

Want a Square Deal In Foreign Oil Fields

In a bulletin relating to the oil industry issued by Henry L. Doherty & Co., Chairman A. C. Bedford of the directorate of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is quoting in a statement as to the necessity of this country extending its oil land holdings as saying:

"It is no use disguising the fact that in a way the United States has been caught napping in this matter of safeguarding future supplies of oil. While we have been clamoring for government investigations, the British have been quietly acquiring every possible aid to any of their nationals seeking to advance Britain's commercial position. We are at last sensing what the British recognized long ago, that the country which controls the petroleum supply is the country which controls world trade. It is particularly hope that public opinion will demand co-operative effort looking to the development of our holdings of oil lands lest we be outdone in the position of a petitioner for oil in foreign markets at a time when for military reasons or other reasons they will be loath to supply us. Our position in this most essential industry is not nearly so secure as it ought to be. It is estimated by the U. S. Geological Survey that of all oil originally underlying the surface of the ground in this country more than 40 per cent. has now been produced and consumed. We are today and for a long time past, have been consuming more petroleum than we produce. There is above ground in the United States enough stocks sufficient for only three months and we are slowly eating into this slender margin of safety by our daily drafts of making up the difference in consumption.

MUST IMPORT MORE OIL.

"Not only must we prosecute drilling operations in the United States more vigorously, but we must materially add to our imports. From new countries we keep abreast of the demand that is upon us today. American dollars will go into any field we develop and the money will stay in the United States. Nothing short of the most determined effort will feed the companies that it is policies toward them will be after May 1st established and speaking for all the American companies when I say that we are not getting a square deal in foreign lands. It is a humiliating fact that American capital today is forced to operate under British charters in many foreign fields because of the protection it can gain thereby. These are unpleasant things for me to have face, and I hope that by recognizing them we can awaken public conscience to the folly of preaching the abandonment of aggressive foreign trade policies. And the same time advocating a hands-off attitude on the part of our government."

Credit Malady Has Not Been Cured

In commenting upon the stock market outlook, J. S. Bache & Co. say:

"The credit malady is not by any means cured. The pressure for credit is going to be a great drain necessary in moving the crops, must continue if adequate prospects for the latter are realized. This same pressure should assist in gaining China and India, owing to adverse financial conditions in those countries and the hoarding of speculative commodity loans and consequent offerings that are necessities themselves in the market. With results uncertain both as to credit provisions and lower prices, the security market is not in position to forecast the outcome, and remains more or less dormant."

Cloth Market Is Dull

While the market in dull trading in fabrics improved at Fall River this week, print cloths being estimated at 100,000 pieces.

PROFIT TAKING CUTS GAINS

Reaction in the Second Hour Affects the Whole List; Rails Decline

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks weakened in New York before the close, and were at the lowest level of the session in the second hour. Reductions ranged from fractions to three points. Among those to reflect the change the most were Crucible, Republic, Reading, Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin, American Woolen common and International Paper.

Demand slackened and offering suddenly increased. The market was dull, but most active on the decline. The 8 per cent. call rate holds over until Monday. Reports as to "old guard" movements at the Chicago convention perplexed traders, it was said. Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific were among those pressed and were the weakest rails.

OPENED WITH ADVANCES.

The market opened with advances and with Crucible the feature, began with a gain of two points and was up seven within ten minutes. There was some buying on the part of the public, but short covering was more of a factor in the initial price movement. Gains as a rule were small, but the market had a stronger tone than they implied. Subsequent trading was of about the same volume as at the start on Friday. Profit taking was in evidence with that issue to hold it only checked the advance for a few minutes. Accompanying the rise of Crucible was rumors that another stock dividend is under consideration.

U. S. STEEL STRONG.

Baldwin was among the strongest and most active issues. Stromberg Carburetor and Bosch Magneto gained two points each before mid-morning and U. S. Steel sold its highest for some time. Steels showed the most class strength and rails the least. Motors and oils, excepting Mexican Petroleum, had a narrow movement, but were upward. At the end of an hour prices were below the opening level, owing to realization selling.

The money market is being affected to some extent at present by borrowings by persons who are in position who are preparing to pay tax installments on June 15, while others want money which has been on Wall Street for some time is being withdrawn as a preliminary to crop moving. The South is calling for funds, too. Traders are giving less attention to the call rate. With corporations paying such large interest as is asked at present for accommodations, speculators must expect high charges. Brokers are supplied with funds and are lending money on call.

LYNN SHOE INDUSTRY IS DULL AT PRESENT

As to the shoe manufacturing situation in Lynn, some men in the trade stated to a Boston News Bureau reporter that from 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. only of the shoe workers in the city are at present employed.

"But," he says, "25 per cent. is a better figure. Shoe workers declare, however, that they are only getting in 28 to 30 hours per week.

There are over 80 new plants in Lynn and some 125 in Haverhill, and many of these are mushroom growths from now on, the trade feels it will be the survival of the fittest in a buyers' market, and many of these concerns will be weeded out.

"One manufacturer predicts the dullness will extend around July 15, but then there will be something of a rush to get Fall goods, although the demand for Spring goods will be done as soon as it has been. There are no considerable stocks of shoes on hand, only 'spotty' goods at the factories or in stores."

May Reduce Dividend

When President J. M. Hannaford was at Butte on an inspection trip he said the Northern Pacific would not reduce its present dividend unless freight rates were increased. Nearly half of the road's earnings are secured over the country while it was under government control and the enlargement of earnings is due to the return of the cars. Out of 29,000 refrigerator cars the road now has 2,600 on its line. President Hannaford says the Northwestern crop outlook is the best in years.

Brickley Elected Director

At a meeting of the board of directors of McClure's Magazine, Inc., Charles F. Brickley of the firm of Charles E. Brickley & Company, was elected a director. Others on the board are Samuel S. McClure, former president of the Tobacco Products Corporation, and Leon Wilhelm, former president of Schinaal Brothers cigarette manufacturers.

Small Sales of Copper

In general the copper market is unchanged at the end of the week, but some large agencies report only a small amount of metal for July delivery at 19 cents a pound. Smaller interests are quoting from 18¾ to 19 for copper held by them or offered on Japanese account.

Sheppard Will Allowed

The will of Robert K. Sheppard of Newton, who died January 22, has been allowed by the probate court. Mrs. Grace D. Sheppard, his widow, has been appointed executrix. The estate is valued at $38,000.

Town and City Loans

Manchester, N. H., will receive proposals until 2 p. m., June 15, for $ temporary loan of $250,000 in anticipation of taxes, dated July 15 and payable December 30, 1920.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Unshackle Business; Repeal Excess Profits Tax

The present tax on excess profits was adopted as a war measure, in response to the extraordinary need of quick revenue and to the patriotic feeling that, during the war, all Americans should GIVE, not MAKE.

To take for war needs profits growing out of war conditions was obviously justified. If the nation could conscript the bodies of its young men, it could surely take the war profits of its business men—the latter was by much the lesser sacrifice.

Instead, however, of drawing a fixed line between war profits and profits which, though obtained during wartime, were not created out of war conditions, the Congress took as its basis of comparison the average annual net profits for the pre-war period of 1911, 1912 and 1913.

If profits shown, say, in 1919, rose above that average, the excess, minus certain exemptions, was taxed. If the business had not shown a profit in 1911, 1912 or 1913, it was allowed an exemption of $3,000 plus a sum equal to 10 per cent. of its invested capital during 1919.

Under this rough rule of assessment many businesses just getting started during the pre-war period are now paying a tax on profits earned since the war—not through war profiteering, but as the result of natural growth under good management.

Under present conditions interest of 7 per cent. is obtainable, upon well-secured short term loans, without risk or effort. When an unearned income as liberal as this is offered to mere money lenders who do no labor, take no risks, and render no service of production, an "excess profits tax" on business must either deter men from going into business or else must be added to the cost of things produced.

The tax is paid by the consumers and is not a war profits tax at all. If while we were at war it had been found necessary to tax every kind of surplus profit, to tax it in part or to take it all, no honest citizen could have made just objection, for national self-preservation is the supreme law of nations; to the common defence every individual must bow.

But the war is over. It is in the public interest to get back as speedily as possible to a normal peace basis. This taxing of business efficiency is no longer required by public necessity, but grows in injustice and in impolicy every day that it is continued. It enhances the cost of almost everything we buy.

The paramount need today is to encourage efficiency in business, so that the world's under-supply of commodities may be swiftly found and the enormous burden of inflated prices thus relieved.

Every tax laid on business efficiency helps to add to high prices, helps to retard the catching up in the world's supply of necessities. Every day of the continuation of such a tax prolongs the general unrest, sets back the processes of healthy reconstruction.

We appreciate fully the continued need of very large revenue by the government. Until the war debts are paid, the war wastes repaired, the war shortages made up and the foundations of welfare rebuilt, high taxation will be inevitable.

We ask no exemption of wealth as wealth. It received the major benefit of war activity and it should foot the bill.

But it is in the public interest that a sharp distinction should be drawn between wealth gained through privilege by those contributing little or nothing to its creation and the wealth that comes from successful production or good service.

Taxes are objected to in any form, but they are indispensable.

They should be so regulated as not to increase prices of any necessity of life, or discourage production, or diminish enterprise, because nothing but increased production and thrift, meaning greater savings by the multitude of workers, can relieve the present intolerable conditions.

The two legs of reconstruction are intelligent economy and business efficiency. We hobble either at our peril.

So the duty of Congress, neglected at the recent session, but becoming more urgent with each day of additional delay, is plain.

It should enforce with Spartan fortitude intelligent economy, which means expending no dollar not promising a useful and necessary result.

And it should, as the first step toward encouraging business efficiency, unshackle business from the excess profits tax.

Every Eligible American Boy Should Be a Boy Scout

Altogether more than a million and a quarter American boys have accepted the Boy Scout Oath and Law in the past ten years. The number in good standing is now 392,796, which does not include 109,635 Scout officials, masters and auxiliaries.

Nevertheless, throughout the country only one boy of eligible age in twenty-two is a Scout. Wherever possible every boy in a community should enroll. For this splendid movement has become an invaluable instrument of Americanization.

It teaches organization, discipline, punctuality, duty, comradeship. It improves health and morals. It builds a habit of team play at the time in a lad's life when good habits are most easily fixed. It prepares the younger generation for many of the responsibilities of manhood.

Schools and churches are taking it up. The American Legion has agreed to help. Increasingly, those men in the communities who have the vision to see what well-trained boyhood means for the future and the aptitude to serve are volunteering for instruction and leadership. The time is ripe for a great stride forward by the Scout movement.

The chief difficulty is in lack of funds to maintain adequate local headquarters and an efficient administrative staff through which constantly to enlist scoutmasters and to provide training courses.

Extending the Boy Scouts of America, it has been well said, is good citizen insurance and very cheap for the value gained. The parent who does not encourage his boy to become a Scout misses a great privilege and pleasure.

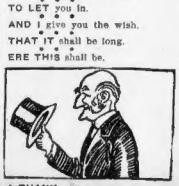
MY DEAR kid.
YEARS AGO.
WHEN I was a kid.
AND YOU were along.
IN YOUR middle age.
I REMEMBER well.
THAT IN politics.
YOUR ENEMIES.
WOULD HOLD you up.
AS A pliant tool.
OF SELFISH wealth.
AND ONE of the crowd.
THAT KNEW no law.
EXCEPT ITS own.
AND THEY may have been right.
AND THEY may have been wrong.
BUT, ANYWAY,
I WANT to say.
THAT AN hour ago.
FROM THE time I write.
I STOOD in my place.
WHERE THE rafters come down.
IN THE further end.
OF THE Coliseum.
AND I heard the chairman.
SPEAK HIS piece.
ABOUT CHAUNCEY Depew.
AND YOU stepped forth.
AND I heard the cheer.
AND THOUGH it is true.
THAT WHERE I stood.
WAS A block away.
FROM WHERE you stood.
I COULD see in your face.
THE YOUTH you hold.
AT FOUR score years.
AND SEVEN more.
AND WHEN you spoke.
I COULD hear the youth.
THAT YOUR voice still holds.
IN SPITE of age.
AND I said to myself.
THAT IT must be.
THAT HE who is given.
THE YOUTH you have.
AND THE charm you have.
MUST HAVE earned it all.
AND NOW you have come.
TO THE twilight age.
OF A busy life.
AND YOU have these things.
THAT FEW men hold.
WITH THE toll of years.
THAT HAVE been yours.
THAT IT must be.
THAT UPON the book.
WHERE THE deeds of men.
ARE WRITTEN down.
THAT YOUR page holds.
SO MUCH of good.
THAT YOU have done.
AND SO much cheer.
THAT YOU'VE spread about.
THAT IT'S more than likely.
THAT THE few black marks.
WILL HAVE faded out.
WHEN THE day shall come.
WHEN THE golden key.
WILL UNLOCK the gate.
TO LET you in.
AND I give you the wish.
THAT IT shall be long.
ERE THIS shall be.



I THANK you.

Bunker Hill's Fame Bright After 145 Years

It is more than the 145th anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill that is celebrated next Thursday. The fight on Charlestown Heights—still ranked by historians as the bloodiest in all history—was the first armed assertion of the rights of government for which many of the peoples of Europe are still contending.

There are many spots in twentieth century Boston which for their connection with such a day in world history would be called "hallowed" in more sentimental countries. Some of them are visited each Summer by thousands of people from all over the country, who come to see them in patriotic fervor. But they all are passed over every day by thousands of Bostonians who have no thought of the momentous things which have happened in the very streets they pass through—sometimes in the very buildings they scarcely glance at.

In tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser the happenings of the sultry June day, nearly a century and a half ago, when the fight for modern democracy began, are located in their present-day surroundings in Charlestown and in the "City Proper" so that in their daily comings and goings busy New Englanders may find reminders of the city's high place in human progress. The article is of interest to those who come here as sightseers, too, for this information never before has been brought together in concise form. A plan of the terrain in the battle of Bunker Hill as it was in 1775 and as today illustrates the article.

"No Wall street Democrat can win the nomination at San Francisco," declares William Jennings Bryan in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

In analyzing the political situation from a Democratic standpoint Mr. Bryan asserts McAdoo is sure to be defeated if named as the party candidate and quotes Scripture in support of his views. He accuses Vice-President Marshall of seeking to interest Big Finance and also discusses the chances of other men in the party who have been mentioned as standard-bearers.

Lothrop Stoddard, a former resident of Brookline, who is an authority on international problems, shows how the 40,000,000 death toll in and through the war leaves the white race weak before the yellow.

"The white race still has a chance," warns Mr. Stoddard, "but it must swim quickly—or else oblivion."

A huge outdoor auditorium, suitable for the production of land and water pageants, and providing a recreation centre for the crowded sections of the city, will be constructed on the Charles River dam, if plans of social workers and prominent citizens are successful.

Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser contains an account and drawings showing the details of the proposed centre which, it is predicted, will put Boston in the fore in civic and community theatrical productions.

Off for Rome!

Five hundred Knights of Columbus, including many from Massachusetts and New England, will make a pilgrimage to the Eternal City in August. They will present to France a replica of the famous statue of Lafayette in the Louvre. It is the work of a Boston sculptor, Paul W. Bartlett, and will be placed in Metz, Lafayette's home city, which Americans have helped restore to France.

Following this ceremony, the Knights will tour the battlefields of France as the guests of the French government, and will visit other European points of interest, including the birthplace and home of Columbus.

The climax of the pilgrimage will be a visit to Rome, where for the first time in the history of the Vatican the palace and gardens of the Pope will be open exclusively on one day for the Knights. His Holiness will receive them personally and conduct a special mass for them.

John B. Kennedy, head of the publicity and educational department of the Knights, writes interestingly of this pilgrimage in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Outlook for Manufacturers When Prices Come Down

By Roger W. Babson

As the reaction on the price trend has started with the consumer and runs down through the retailer to the manufacturer it presents problems of a very serious sort. Let's see what has happened to the manufacturer while prices have been climbing.

For the past four years this country has had a phenomenal expansion in currency, credit and industry. A great deal of this expansion has been nothing more than inflation, as credit has expanded faster than the volume of goods produced would warrant.

Seller's Market

For some time the market in this country has been a seller's market. Manufacturers in many lines have been able to sell easily all the goods they could produce, and, moreover, took orders for considerably more than they really expected to manufacture. For some time it was a common occurrence to receive reports of huge amounts of unfilled orders held by concerns in this or that industry.

In a number of industries, notably in the textiles and shoe industries, unfilled orders have dwindled rapidly, due to extensive cancellations. In many other industries production has been so stimulated that supply is approaching a balance with demand, and in still others the supply now exceeds the demand.

Producing conditions are, to say the least, difficult. In certain lines, such as leather, silk, wool and rubber, the price of the raw material would permit, were it the only factor, a material reduction in the cost of manufacture. A great many other raw materials, however, continue at exceedingly high prices. There is not only scarcity in the commodity, but congestion of the railroads has tended toward great difficulty in obtaining delivery.

Many Strikes

With regard to labor, an exceptionally long list of strikes gives convincing evidence of the unsatisfactory attitude of the average wage-earner. In some industries the wage level has been pushed high enough to insure a certain amount of stability, while in others the employer and employe seem to be far away from an agreement conducive to increase production. In many industries the power situation is a cause of trouble.

Under-production of coal and congestion on the railways have both worked toward great uncertainty in factory operation. This is especially true in New England. In considering the difficulties in the way of production, however, due weight should be given to the fact that industrial production generally is seeking to operate in larger volume than ever before, and it is only natural that conditions should be rather tight with respect to raw materials, labor, power and transportation.

Gradually Overcome

The world shortage of goods is gradually being overcome. Europe is slowly, but surely, readjusting its industries, transferring its labor from military activities to industrial and agricultural activity. There is apparent a gradual adjustment of the distributive process of commerce. This condition, taken in conjunction with the disarrangement of the foreign exchange rates, is tending to curtail our exports and to increase our imports.

The effect of this is to increase the supply of goods available for home consumption. This effect becomes marked at a time when domestic demand gives evidence of a more conservative attitude. The purchasing power, pent-up during the war and intensified by high wages and prohibition, resulted in a great burst of buying during the year 1919. This wave of extravagance has about run its course, and there is much evidence in the news of the day to show that demand is becoming more sane and moderate.

Face It Himself

If the public continues in its present buying attitude and refuses to buy except in absolute necessity until prices come down the retailer in turn cannot buy from the wholesaler until prices are reduced, and the wholesaler sends his ultimatum to the manufacturer, and the manufacturer stands at the end of the line, so cannot pass the ultimatum along to anyone else, but must face the situation himself.

He must either sell his goods at a lower price or close his doors.

If we are to avoid indefinite depression and hard times under these conditions, production must be increased. A lower cost on raw materials will help considerably, of course, but the key to the whole situation lies with labor. Production per man at present is only about two-thirds of what it was in 1914.

If the laboring man will but appreciate his position and cooperate with his employer to increase efficiency and cut down cost it will mean that employer can keep on paying the present high scale of wages right straight through the period of declining business.

Indifferent Attitude

If, on the other hand, the employe continues in an indifferent attitude, working against his employer rather than with him, it means that the employer has but one alternative left. Having no demand for his high-cost goods, he must shut his plant and wait until he can again find a market for his goods, or until he can place them at prices prevalent in the market.

By working against his employer the laboring man may have the satisfaction of seeing that man suffer a loss of business, but in turn the laborer will suffer a great deal more in unemployment and will find eventually that he must go back to work at a lower wage.

The demand for lower prices has started at the top, and if it continues to work down through retailer, wholesaler and manufacturer, we must meet it with increased production or suffer together from slack business, hard times and unemployment. If it was ever necessary for the laborer and employer to get together, now is the time!
